New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—In his first public appearance as the Independent-Progressive candidate for President, Senator Robert M. La Follette, addressing a massmeeting in Madison Square Garden tonight, raked both the old parties torn and rift, accused President Coolidge of guilty knowledge of the navy oil scandal, and defended at length his proposal for congressional nullification of Supreme court decisions.

The Garden was packed with 15,000 men and women who went wild with enthusiasm over Little Bob and his excoriation of men, measures, and institutions bearing either the Republican or Democratic label.

This throng, breathing a fervor reminiscent of the spirit of the Roosevelt and Bryan idolators of other days, had paid from $5 cents to $2.20 a seat for the privilege of participating in this rally, thereby contributing some $12,000 to the La Follette election fund.

Quadruple Dragons.

When the Wisconsin senator had concluded his auditors were convinced that they were being ground down under the heel of some tyrant, but were uncertain which to blurb the most—Coolidge, Mr. Davis' Wall street friends, the trusts, or the Supreme court. All of them came in for a tremendous inrapping, to the great delight of the audience.

A novel feature of the rally was the parade to the Garden of 500 "fighting Bubs," young women with bobbed hair under the leadership of Margaret Vale, a niece of Woodrow Wilson, who is chairman of the All-Party Progressive League.

Prominent among those on the speaker's platform were Morris Hillquit and other Socialist party leaders; Helen Keller; Oswald Garrison Villard, editor of the Nation; Malcolm R. McAdoo, a brother of the former secretary of the treasury, and a number of labor union officials.

Some of Old Fire Missing.

The senator looked the picture of health despite his many illnesses. He was dressed in a natty gray suit and shiny blue negligee shirt. He was La Follette in his element—gray mane bristling and quivering, eyes narrowing, lips sternly setting, minatory forefinger agitating the air, his whole figure crouching at times as for the spring upon the prey of the moment—vested interests, the judiciary, or whatnot.

Yet there was evidence of the old fire dying out in the seventieth year of the veteran insurgent. He read his speech from manuscript so mechanically at times that he repeatedly snarled all sense out of his sentences and was compelled to correct himself under the prompting of his son, who sat at his elbow.

Rainbows for the Farmers.

He was prompt with his promises to ameliorate the lot of the toilers if the third party is given power. Incomes will go up and prices down. Special treatment for the fills of the farmers was pledged.

In order permanently to relieve the farmer and to prevent the recurrence of agricultural distress as well as to benefit the consumer through eliminating the unjust toll of middle men and speculators in food products, it is the duty of the government to aid the farmer in the organization and development of a national cooperative marketing system, under the control of the farmers themselves, free from interference by the government or its agencies," he said.

The greatest inspiration of the world today," the senator declaimed, "is the fact that in every quarter of the globe the people are gaining control of their governments and bending their energies to prevent another world catastrophe. Within the last year reactionary governments have been dispensed by progressive governments in England, France, Austria, and South Africa. On every side we see a reawakening of the people, a re-birth of genuine democracy."

Forwears Other Wars.

"It is that fact, my friends, which should give us here in America hope. The tidal wave of democracy that is sweeping the world knows no national boundaries. It is today sweeping over the United States, and when the 4th of November dawns it will break to pieces the rotting, waterlogged

Tested "Financing Plan."

The same plan was used in financing the widening and double decking of South Water street now under way. The sidewalk link, Roosevelt road widening, and other major street improvements.

In its essential phases, the mayor's scheme follows closely the plan suggested by Michael Faherty, president of the board of local improvements under former Mayor Thompson.

Legal authority for the scheme is found, it is said, in an opinion given by Corporation Counsel Francis X. Burch to the mayor and the council local transportation committee some months ago. Before special assessments can be confirmed in court, and levied against benefited property, according to the opinion, the city must show that the proposed subway will benefit adjacent property.

Leagues Prove Benefit.

This proof will be found in leases for its operation by an existing facility. This, of necessity, was pointed out, will mean operating leases to either the surface or elevated lines on a showing that "the necessary proceedings have been had to authorize and insure municipal operation."

How long it will take to negotiate leases for operation of the proposed subways none of the aldermen would predict. Before parleys can be held, working plans for the tubes must be prepared, and routes and stations determined satisfactory to the lessee.

The aldermen are impressed with the possibility of having property owners pay for benefits received from the subways because they have been told that rapid transit facilities will double, triple, and quadruple property values.

Want More Subways.

In their tour of New York's subways and elevated lines the aldermen visited sections of the city where realty values were enhanced five times after rapid transit extensions were projected. They inspected 6th avenue, where 30 percent of the property owners have petitioned the state transit commission to tear down the elevated structures and dig subways in the streets. They have offered to spread the cost of the improvement among themselves over a period of ten years. In Chicago it is suggested the assessments be extended over a period of twenty years.

Estimating the normal increase in the seven year period to be about $20,000,000, the New York City club, according to reports given the council committee, found that the addition of rapid transit facilities in the areas between 125th street and Sputen Duyvill had increased property values about $40,000.

The aldermen saw four and one-half miles of new lines under construction which, when completed, will give Flushing, on Long Island, new rapid transportation to the heart of Manhattan and all parts of Greater New York.

Opinion Answered Mills.

Mr. Busch's opinion on the feasibility of financing subway construction by special assessment was originally intended to answer queries advanced by Ald. Wiley Mills [37th] last February.

The latter had made a special trip to confer with Daniel L. Turner, consulting engineer for the New York state transit commission, as well as adviser to the Detroit transit commission.

"Mr. Turner told me that three-fourths of the construction cost of rapid transit lines, whether publicly or privately owned, should be paid by the property specially benefited by the lines," Ald. Mills wrote to Mr. Busch.

He said that if rapid transit lines were built on the special assessment plan it would be as easy to build fifty miles as one mile, because different groups in the community would pay the cost.

NEW JUNIOR HIGHS GAIN FRIENDS AMONG ENEMIES

Attacks Ceasing; Harper
School Row Adjusted.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

Scrutiny again hovers over the school board rooms. The fuss over the opening of Chicago's first group of junior high schools blew itself out yesterday.

In the Harper school district went word to President Moderator that several churches in the neighborhood had offered space for classrooms to take care of the overflow. The building department will inspect them to insure sanitation, light and heat.

The step follows a suggestion from Supt. McAndrew that if possible all of the children be housed in churches until suitable buildings are built, and the authorities regard the controversy as practically a closed incident.

Other Opposition Fading.

The other four schools which were put on a junior high plan as an opener in Chicago's new educational policy, the reorganization has proceeded without a ripple. The idea is to let the junior high movement carry itself forward on its own momentum, having given it a start. Already among the teaching force a noticeable swing towards the new idea is perceptible, even among those who were lukewarm or even antagonistic.

Some 1,500 teachers took the special courses for junior highs, and although less than 500 have passed the examinations as yet, most of the 1,500 who have become enthusiasts. Some who started as skeptics have turned into converts.

In the Harper school district some of the parents who were active in the protest meeting and the effort to get an injunction, which failed, have told President Moderator that they have changed their views on the junior high scheme. They declare they were not adequately informed of what the plan really is and have become convinced it is a great forward step in the schools.

Feared Traffic Hazards.

The situation, they say, was really not on the increase. Standard junior high cars to children in the lower grades who were to be dispersed into other districts. As a matter of fact, out of 277 subdistricts in Chicago there is only one where children do not have to cross street car tracks, or steam railway tracks or boulevards. The only exception is the Plamondon school at South Waishantown and 15th place.

The board has arranged to retain some of the lower grades at the Harper school to avoid increasing the street crossing hazard for the younger pupils.

In the background of the difficulty at the Harper school is the bewildesting conflict between superintendent, teachers, and school board over who's the boss.

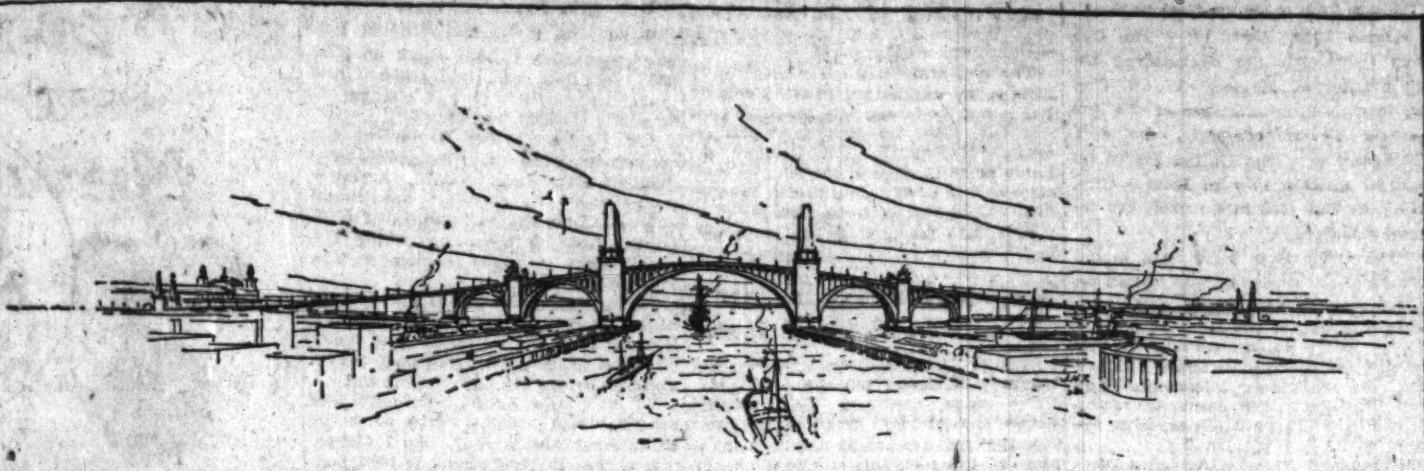

The meeting of protest, it now appears from word at the board rooms, had among its guiding angels an element among the teachers opposed to the new school policies.

For the past two weeks teachers' councils and whether they should be held during school hours or after seems to be dying out. Indications yesterday were that the board will uphold Supt. McAndrew in his reorganization plan.

What Councils Talked About.

A perusal of the printed reports of the elementary teachers' general council for the period October, 1921, to February, 1924, shows that the discussion covered a wide field. Theoretically the original idea was that the councils should concentrate on the study of local educational work, duties, and advancement of teachers and a general study of educational questions. They have devoted much time to these questions, but in addition have gone

PROPOSE STONE BRIDGE AS MONUMENT TO CITY'S GREATNESS

This is a drawing of a permanent stone bridge, half a mile long and 160 feet high, which Charles E. Fox, president of the Illinois Society of Architects, proposes be built over the mouth of the Chicago river linking Grant park and Lake Shore Drive.

Further. It gives point to the question now on the fire whether dismissal of classes is necessary to talk these things over.

Here are some samples of what was said in the council:

It was decided that the age limit be abolished for teachers entering and that examination papers be marked in "schooltime."

They suggested that requirements for teaching in elementary and high schools should be the same.

They asked for two weeks' vacation at Christmas time and that educational policies should be determined by the teaching force.

They suggested that substitutes attending the councils should be paid their salaries, if not in active work at the time.

The councils went on record against the platoon system, against the idea of a six day school, against a twelve month school.

Charge Minority Control.

Among teachers for years there has been an undercurrent of complaint that the councils often appear to be run by a strongly organized minority. Resolutions sometimes come through the councils so identical in wording that they apparently originate from a common source. The trend of some of the observations from the councils is in the direction of a decline of classroom time, reducing educational output, so to speak. This, it is pointed out, is contraindicative to the task of getting more use out of the $300,000,000 public school plant, which now operates only 196 days, or about 900 hours, a year.

U. S. OIL AGENTS
TALK IN MEXICO
OVER NEW BOOM

Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

Mexico City, Sept. 18.—Representatives of American oil companies who are here from New York today conferred with several government officials on Mexico. The oil men stated that modification of the tax on oil and labor and other laws are necessary, if the present decreasing of production is to be increased.

Although the oil men are keeping their movements secret, it is understood here that the famous Articles 27 and 28 of the Mexican constitution of 1917 are again the issue.

Congress has made several moves toward alleviating the oil situation.

Father Dies Like His Son; Drowns in Lake

Four years ago the son of Antone Dajnowski, a barber living at 3848 East 57th street, was taken from the lake at the foot of 101st street, and last week two men saw Dajnowski's body floating in the water at the same spot. Since the boy was drowned the barber's mind had been deranged, the police were told, and it is believed that despondency over this tragedy led him to commit suicide.

BARS TEACHERS' MEETINGS DURING SCHOOL SESSION

Supt. M'Andrew Sends Principals Word.

Superintendent of Schools McAndrew's program to reduce interruptions to teaching time was carried a step further yesterday.

In a bulletin he notified principals that dismissal of classes early for the purpose of teachers' meetings must be avoided.

Other school systems do not find it necessary to shorten school sessions for that purpose, he said.

"For the last seven years I made all my meetings in New York voluntary," he said in the bulletin, "posted the results for the benefit of the absentees, and held them responsible for such posted directions. We had good attendance. Chicago teachers are no less interested."

WEAK ON "THREE R'S"

While officials of the board of education were expressing satisfaction yesterday in Chicago, Mayor Smith's victory over those of New York in a recent history examination, they were somewhat chagrined to learn that among 175 school systems Chicago stood thirty-first in reading, writing, and arithmetic, or geography, called the "three R's."

Although Chicago's system stands fifth in the number of crippled children, military training, and playgrounds, it is not known to 175 schoolmasters for any excellence in reading, writing, composition, arithmetic, or geography, according to the survey soon to be published.

Cities Ranking Chicago.

Cities excelling Chicago were Kansas City, St. Louis, Detroit, Youngstown, Des Moines, and twenty-six other places.

Chicago is eleventh in organization.

wrecks of the Democratic and Republican parties.

"What will this mean, my friends? It will mean freedom and prosperity for the common people here in the United States. It will mean that we Progressives will be in a position to use our influence to bring about a revision of the treaty of Versailles, which now rests its dead hand upon the body of Europe."

"It will mean that we can cooperate wholeheartedly with the liberal governments of the world to outlaw war, to abolish conscription, to reduce to a purely defensive basis naval, aerial and land armaments."

On the Supreme Court.

On the question of the judicial power Senator La Follette wanted to know whether the plain people want the Supreme court to be our actual ruler, and the vote by this massmeeting was unanimous no.

"Either or," said the senator, "means the final arbiter of what the law is or else some means must be found to correct its decisions. If the court is the final and conclusive authority to determine what laws may pass, then obviously the court is the real ruler of the country exactly the same as the most absolute king would be."

The senator likened his own challenge of the power of the Supreme court to the attitude of Lincoln in denouncing the Dred Scott decision and charging "that tribunal with a conspiracy to perpetuate and extend the slave system." To demonstrate that the veto power of the court needs curtailment the senator cited a number of decisions which he pronounced re-actionary.

The federal courts, particularly the Supreme court, have declared unconstitutional or otherwise nullified the most important legislation enacted by the law making branch of the government within the last few years," he said.

The decisions cited included the income tax cases nullifying the act passed by congress in August, 1924; the Standard Oil and American Tobacco trust cases, the child labor law cases, and the act fixing a minimum wage for women and children in the District of Columbia.

"There are only a very few of the cases where, during the last few years, the power by using legislative power, has nullified acts of congress," the senator asserted.

The judicial veto in practically all these cases has been leveled at progressive measures which enunciated a rule contrary to the economic or political beliefs of a majority of the men who happen to make up the Supreme court. Tenement houses, bank traps, workmen's compensation, eight hour decisions, and many others of a similar nature could be cited to the same effect.

Door Closed to Legislation.

But it is not merely the number of cases in which the courts have nullified the acts of congress that is important. It is the fact that each one of these decisions has closed the door to similar progressive legislation in the future.

"Always these decisions of the court are on the side of the wealthy and powerful and against the poor and weak, whom it is the policy of the law making branch of the government to assist by enlightened and humanitarian legislation.

"Now it is obvious that a remedy for this condition must be found.

"The only way to do this is through the medium of a king, a court or any other sovereign power the will of the people represented in the law making branch of their government can be arbitrarily and finally defeated.

His Proposed Reform.

"Our suggested constitutional amendment means simply this:

"That whenever the court assumes to nullify an act of congress the court shall certify its decision with the reasons for making it back to the congress, much as the President now certifies an act passed by that body. Upon the arrival of the document, the members of the court and all the facts and circumstances of counsel and members of the court before congress finally acted upon the measure.

"Our opponents say that congress may err and pass an unconstitutional law, and that the power must reside somewhere to declare such a law unconstitutional. We answer that the congress and the country are fully equipped in this respect, but it is just as true that the Supreme court may also err and declare a perfectly constitutional act passed by congress to be unconstitutional. That the court has done this very thing again and again is fully established by the cases to which I have referred."

Alleges Its Advantages.

"This method would have the advantage of giving to every piece of legislation the constitutional condition of which was challenged a full hearing before the Supreme court, the congress again before the President when he signs it, and again a full hearing before the Supreme court, where every phase of the question could be discussed by able counsel, and finally there would be a rehearing before the congress, in which there would be available to congress all the discussions and opinions of counsel and members of the court before congress finally acted upon the measure.

"The Chicagoans have been making the relative trade condition in this country," Mr. Curtis said. "St. Louis appreciates the Mexican market more. There is an opening in this country for mercantile lines, automotive and machinery industries. The country which is the best to appreciate the trade possibilities here appears to be Bill Wright."

A thousand guests attended a farewell luncheon for the mission on Chapultepec Castle terrace today. The mission starts home tomorrow.

New Crack I. C. Train to Have Women's Smokers

St. Louis and one-half hour service from Chicago to St. Louis on the Illinois Central railroad will be established next Wednesday, officials of the railroad announced last night.

The new train will leave Chicago at 12:15 p. m. and arrive in St. Louis at 6:15 p. m., the latest time at which connections with the southwest can be made. Returning, it will leave St. Louis at 12:15 p. m. and arrive in Chicago at 4:45 p. m. Clinton and Springfield will be the only other stops.

Exclusive features of the train will be a woman's smoking and lounge car.

Police waited, but it was nearly midnight when the bride returned and learned that her husband was dead.

She had passed the place only a few minutes before the body was found.

"I saw the lights burning," she sobbed, "and I didn't want to go in while Jean was still up. So I visited my mother in Evanston. It was just a little quarrel," she added. "I didn't mean anything that I said to him—not a thing."

PEKING'S ARMIES GIRD FOR DRIVE BY MANCHU TIGER

CHEKIANG TROOPS FACING DEFEAT AT SHANGHAI.

BY JOHN CLARK.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PEKING, Sept. 18.—Following final consultations with Gen. Wu Pei-Fu, Chihli war lord, the commanders of the Peking armies which will oppose the forces of Chang Tsu-lin, the Manchu "Tiger," are rushing the completion of the mobilization of troops for a northward movement. The first army headquarters will be at Shanhakwan, the second army at Chaochang, half way north in the Jehol administrative area, and the third army at Chifeng.

There will be 25,000 men at Shanhakwan, 30,000 at Chaochang, and 30,000 at Chifeng. Gen. Wang Hsiao Ching, commanding the second army at Chaochang, has the best troops and is second only to Gen. Wu Pei-Fu as a military genius.

Gen. Feng Yu Hsiaang, the Christian general, will command the third army at Chaochang, where there probably will be little fighting. The discipline of Gen. Feng to the extreme north puts him where his shaky loyalty is comparatively unimportant.

The first army commander at Shanhakwan, Gen. Peng Shou Hsin, is comparatively unknown, but is generally reported to be an excellent general. Gen. Wu is planning to establish headquarters at Lanchow, fairly close to Shanhakwan, and thus be able to render immediate aid to Gen. Feng if necessary.

CHANG HAS FIVE ARMIES.

Gen. Chang Tsu-lin has divided his forces into five armies preparatory to moving against the northern provinces of Chihli province and feeling out the defenses along the borders of the Jehol area. He is already forming spear heads for drives against Shanhakwan and Chaochang, with his ablest generals commanding. Skirmishes around these points have already occurred, but there has been no important fighting.

Gen. Chang and Gen. Wu have 50,000 men each available for the campaign in the Shanhakwan and Chaochang regions. After the fighting really starts it probably will be carried on strenuously a day or two, and then the losing side will become demoralized. This happened in the Peking campaign in the spring of 1922, when Gen. Chang's men fled after their first defeat.

Both sides are now busy entrenched in the Shanhakwan region. Gen. Chang's mobilization there is not complete. All the troops of Peking's first army are on the ground, but probably will not begin a full attack until the second army is ready at Chaochang.

The temporary suspension of fighting in the lower Yangtze region indicates that Gen. Chi Hsieh Yuan, the Kiangsu leader, is holding his attack until the Anhwei, Fukien, and Kiangsu troops are ready. Then he will launch a simultaneous drive on three sides of Chekiang, forcing Gen. Lu Yung Hsiang to divide his forces, weakening them and making effective resistance

The third Chekiang province army has mutinied and is reported to have joined the Fukien forces which are operating in conjunction with the Kiangsu troops. The rebel troops are reported to be marching on Hangzhou, the capital of Chekiang.

As a result of the revolt the collapse of the Chekiang forces defending Shanghai is expected momentarily.

The Liuhu-Huangtu line is still holding against the Kiangsu attacks but is expected to give way soon.

The Chekiang forces have stopped their attacks on Iking, on the west shore of Lake Tai.

abdicated his position as tuchun of Chekiang.

MARCH ON HANGZHOU.

Reports from Hangzhou state that the revolting troops have joined the forces of Gen. Sun Chuan Fang, leader of the Fukien forces, and are marching on that city.

Reports of Gen. Lu's arrival caused great excitement in Shanghai and have resulted in complete mobilization of the loyal foreign volunteers corps and police reserves as well as foreign naval units ashore. All have received orders to stand by all night.

News from the actual fighting lines is meager tonight, owing to an order issued this morning barring all foreign and native correspondents from the fighting lines and the suppression of important Chinese papers here for printing reports alleged to be favorable to the northern (Kiangsu) side.

FIGHTING AT LIUHU.

There has been heavy fighting in the village of Liuhu, which was attacked by Kiangsu forces with both a land reinforcement from the north and 3,000 marines landed from the Kiangsu fleet anchored in the Yangtze river alongside. It is reported that the fleet fired on the town, causing considerable destruction.

The defeat of the Chiang troops defending Shanghai against the onslaughts of the Kiangsu forces is expected momentarily. Preparations are now being rushed to take care of the situation when the retreating Chiang troops descend on this city.

Gen. Lu Yung Hsiang, commander of the Chiang forces, left his capital, Hangzhou, immediately following the revolt and arrived here at 7 o'clock tonight with two battalions of loyal troops. He has announced that he has

WIFE SUES HER HUSBAND AFTER NEARLY 40 YEARS

After nearly forty years of marriage, during which he has fathered nine children, Albert E. Hewitt, wealthy lumberman, is accused in a bill for separate maintenance, filed yesterday, by his wife, Mrs. Jennie Hewitt.

She says he has been attentive to a Mrs. Delta Blakeney-Bennett and given his wife only a "meager income."

Mrs. Hewitt says she is partly dependent on her children and asks that her husband be compelled to share his $20,000 income with her. Hewitt is president of the Hewitt Lumber company, 4451 West North avenue.

PASTOR BLAMES WAR OF WOMEN FOR HIS MISERY

Goes Back to St. Joe.

(Picture on back page.)
The members of the Evangelical church at St. Joseph, Mich., are ready to forgive their pastor, the Rev. L. R. "Dick" Anderson, for running away last Saturday and nearly getting killed by an auto in Chicago, in a fit of dependency over church rights and gossip.

The Rev. L. R. Anderson, however, isn't so willing to forgive nor forget. He says he's received too many wounds of the spirit to be sure he wants to return to the pastorate.

Will Welcome Pastor.
The church members, according to the secretary, George F. Diemer, and a former secretary, Fremont Adams, are eager to welcome their minister again. Mrs. Anderson is not half so forgiving as her husband, with whom she returned to St. Joseph late yesterday.

Before leaving Chicago Mrs. Anderson denied she and her husband ever had quarreled, even though notes he left behind for her had intimated that she had shown a lack of faith in him during church squabbles.

"Battle of the Ladies."
Some deacons of the church, meeting in St. Joseph Wednesday, had heard of the auto accident and were worried at home. They believed the trouble was due to a struggle for prominence in church affairs carried on between Mrs. O. E. Servia, about 50, and Mrs. C. T. Johnson, about 42. The former is the confidante of the pastor's wife, the latter the life of church society. The former is said to have done many kind things for the pastor's family.

and the latter many effective things for the church.

This rivalry is said in St. Joe to have led to some bitterness, to the forming of factions, to whisperings in the ears of the pastor's wife and to angry disclaimers by the object of gossip. The minister was caught in a whirlpool of chatter, from which he fled, thinking life was not worth much to him.

After he was found, injured by a Chicago auto, he discovered a note addressed to his wife, mentioning the two women leaders in the church, of whom it suggested he was weary.

Mr. Anderson, chaplain of an American Legion post, however, found his pastoral job hard because, as he said before starting back, "more thought is given as to who shall get the credit for the new church carpet than to salvation. More thought is given as to who shall run the Sunday school than that the children shall grow up loving the Master."

Warning of Factions.

"There have been two warring factions, forewarning that theirs was a church and not a ward club. I stood between them until my strength gave out."

"I could have stood the fight and the privations my family had to put up with for the glory of the work, if they had not taken to fighting over me personally. I could stand seeing my little girl shabby and my wife ill-tempered, but I could not stand it because she was the pastor's child, barred from innocent amusements because she must live up to the rules set for a person's child by the narrowest old women. If I had thought that my flock, for whom I worked fifteen and eighteen hours a day, was profiting spiritually."

Held to Grand Jury on High School Girl's Story

Earl J. Schackner, 34 years old, was held to the grand jury by Police Magistrate Max Witkower yesterday after Ethel Beaudreau, a 16 year old high school girl living at 453 West North avenue, had testified that he attacked her. Ethel ran away to see the world. She got as far as the Evanston hotel, where Schackner was employed as room clerk. After the girl's mother had caused his arrest he offered to marry Ethel, but Mrs. Beaudreau and her daughter refused.

KISSING IS GIVEN O. K. OF CHURCH BY DR. THOMPSON

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Countess de Kerinon today reconstructed the scene of the alleged murder of her husband, last survivor of the historic Brittany family, and continued her assertions that the count killed himself while she was trying to take a revolver away from him.

The aged countess was taken from jail by police in a motor car through the streets of Lannion, filled with curious crowds gathered from all Brittany. Before police and several of her titled relatives she was obliged to act out the whole scene of her husband's death. The countess firmly maintains her innocence.

He told members of the Oak Park Lions club that osculation is all right. Although a misplaced smack often leads to divorce courts, a good, legitimate kiss makes for laughter and happiness.

"Kissing is a natural expression of human emotion," said the Rev. Mr. Thompson. "We are in this world to have a roaring good time. Kissing leads to laughter. Laughter is natural, and God is a lover of humor and fun."

COLLINS CALLS
SPEED PARLEY
AS 4 DIE IN DAYThreatens to Hold Captains Responsible.

Four deaths added yesterday to the county's toll of motor dead, raised the total since Jan. 1 to 469. As the deaths were recorded Chief Collins issued orders through Capt. John Prendergast to have the commanding officers of every police district into his office this morning for a conference on speed.

Disatisfaction with the records of motorcycle police, even though 128 speeders had been arrested in twenty-four hours, was expressed by Chief Collins.

At the meeting today the chief will put the situation directly up to his captains. Serious consideration is being given the proposal to disband the motorcycle force as a unit and assign details to each district, under the direct control and full responsibility of the captains.

Girl, 6, Is Killed.

One of yesterday's dead was Martha Pease, 6, 305 South Humphrey avenue, Oak Park, who, while crossing the street near her home, was struck and fatally injured by an automobile driven by W. E. Wilkinson, 5102 Fullerton. The driver was arrested and released on bond.

Carl F. Sochner, 55, of 2717 Ogrood street, was fatally injured while crossing Clark, at Roscoe street, when he was struck by an automobile which failed to stop. Ervy Gray, 2658 North Clark street, was arrested as the driver of the car.

James M. Kryszak, 2117 North Monticello avenue, was killed when he was struck by a machine at Western avenue and Moffat street. His body caught under the car and was dragged six blocks until it fell to the street at Wabash and Rockwell street.

The driver of the car sped away without stopping.

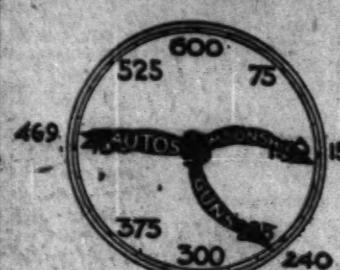

An unidentified man, about 34, and well dressed, was fatally injured last night when he was struck by a car and thrown into the path of another car at East Elm street and Lake Shore drive. Gilbert Torenzani, 2344 Langley avenue, and Alfred J. Lewis, 519 South Irving avenue, were held by the Chicago avenue police.

In a pocket of the victim's suit the police found a key case with the name "Frank Hebe" stamped in it, and a key marked "Co. B, 2d int."

HANDS OF DEATH

The hands of the clock indicate the number of deaths by auto, gun, and moonshine in Cook county since Jan. 1.

Yesterday by Judge Philip J. Finnegan. Two children suffered possible fatal injuries last night when struck by an automobile. Amelia Tigl, 5, of 289 Hill street, trying to catch her pet dog, was struck by a Paramount truck, driven by Karin Coughlin, 329 South Racine avenue.

Jeannette Grulich, 4, of 2545 West Van Buren street, was struck and severely injured by a truck driven by John Epstein, 1531 Edgemont avenue, who was arrested.

DISINTEGRATING SOCIETY.

The expected effects of the Franks case decision are appearing promptly and conspicuously. They illustrate the truism—too little respected—that a judge's responsibility or a jurymen's extends far beyond the limits of the case before him, far beyond the consequences of his judgment to the accused and his or her connections. In strictest logic, as we have said, each case ought to stand on its own facts and be determined upon the law and the evidence. We can easily see that to let one offender escape the due penalty attached to his guilt is hardly justification for letting another escape. Two wrongs do not make a right is a wise proverb asserting an important truth, and if no evildoers were to be punished until all evildoers are punished, society would pass at once into anarchy.

Nevertheless, this reasoning does not cover the problem. Equality before the law is an essential of our system and when there are conspicuous instances of inequality, the social and political consequences are more important even than the adequate penalizing of an offense. This, all who have to do with the administration of justice must keep in mind, realizing that a vicious circle is created by any relaxation of the law and a range of consequences as far reaching as deplorable.

The Franks case decision already, has resulted in the commutation of penalties which, without it, would have been exacted without criticism and which accord fully with the law. It had made it difficult if not impossible to refuse other commutations in cases which under the law do not justify commutation. Murder has been made a less hazardous crime than ever and it was already one of the least hazardous.

We may also expect a renewed organized effort to abolish the death penalty, thus removing a disciplinary influence and restraint upon the undisciplined or ill-disposed which our crime record shows are sorely needed. The taking of life has become so common that for many, especially many youths, it seems to be almost a normal resort to express resentment or dislike for any real or fancied injury. A young woman declared sans physicians, who in the fullness of her ignorance concluded that a doctor's treatment had injured her mother, decides to take what she considers justice into her own hands; resolves herself into prosecutor, jury, and executioner and attempts to inflict upon him the death sentence. That shows a familiar attitude among excitable females, while our crime records are full of murders committed by youths with provocation which would hardly excuse a blow with the fist.

The taking of life has become almost a common place. This represents a state of morals alarming to any one who considers the elements of civilized society. It is a condition which cannot be ignored safely and most certainly calls for a restoration rather than a further weakening of the safeguards civilization has had to create and maintain for the security of human life. And we have the paradox of persistent invasion by government of the individual's noncriminal conduct, while the law becomes weaker and weaker in its action against crimes of violence. We are spending millions in attempting to correct the personal habits of the individual or the management of his business, while the enforcement of elemental laws of ordered society, beginning with the protection of the individual from murder or murderous assaults, is steadfastly deteriorating.

We have called that a paradox; perhaps it is an unavoidable consequence. At any rate there is urgent need for a shift of emphasis.

DON'T CUT THE NAVY.

Saving the navy has become a habit. This time Secretary Wilbur is speeding by plane and train to Washington to save the navy from dangerous budget reduction. Budget Director Lord has cut 20 per cent from the minimum estimates for a navy already operating on a curtailed schedule. For repairs only 55 per cent of the needed appropriations will be allowed. Aviation will be cut by $10,000,000. It will reduce the total navy budget to less than $300,000,000. It is evident that the navy needs saving.

Without proper upkeep, naval depreciation is rapid and dangerous. It is as untrue from a business point of view as it is dangerous materially to allow these costly properties to run down.

With an air service already disgracefully inadequate, with the Florida ready to go out of commission for the want of repairs, with other ships limping through maneuvers for lack of modern equipment, with too few light cruisers and almost no scouting service, it is evident that this is no time to cut the navy budget.

We hope Mr. Wilbur's train will get to Washington on time.

OBIT. ON PITTSBURGH
PLUS.

Today THE TRIBUNE lowers a flag from the sun-damned masthead entitled "Abolish Pittsburgh Plus." The fight is won. The flag need fly there no longer.

Obituary notice of the passing of Pittsburgh Plus shall not be long. Its memory need not be treasured. In announcing its compliance with the order of the federal trade commission to cease and desist from this practice, the U. S. Steel corporation has done only what the massive weight of public opinion has forced it to do. Sectional prejudices organized economically in this unjust form could not well endure in this country.

Gradually the west is coming to its own. The abolition of Pittsburgh Plus is one significant step in breaking down the economic privilege and political supremacy of the east. Already plans are on foot for large steel manufacturing extensions along the south end of Lake Michigan. What in effect has been an internal tariff restricting the natural development in the west of a basic product is broken. The west will gain in many ways.

There are, after all, some compensations in newspaper editing. On Pittsburgh Plus THE TRIBUNE has directed unceasing attack for five years.

The guns that have been firing on Pittsburgh Plus will now be concentrated on the opening up of the Mississippi and St. Lawrence seaways. The insignificant obstacles to navigation in their channels are blockades to our prosperity and are maintained by political manipulation. They should be blasted out by a political upheaval.

THE NEW SOUTH WATER STREET.

The exodus of cabbages and beans rutabagas, carrots and their calm compatriots, the radishes and turnips, crated Malagas and Florida sweets is ordered for October first. As no Moscovite seems to have appeared to lead them out of their old residence along South Water street further delay in moving has been asked. The delay should not be granted.

In ordering wrecking work to begin on October first, and insisting that it shall begin then without further delay, Mayor Dever and John J. Sloan, president of the board of local improvements, are without question representing the best interests of Chicago. Work should be pushed, for the new South Water street is another great link to the new city of the future.

The cabbages and beans and others dispossessed should be remembered. They have brought pollution to Chicago. If properly accommodated with the conveniences to which they have been accustomed they will bring millions more. But their place is longer on South Water street. On December first the old South Water street will be no more. A new one will begin to take its place. To Mayor Dever belongs the credit for breaking the delay on this $22,000,000 project and transforming paper plans into steel and concrete.

THROES OF PROGRESS IN RUSSIA.

The new revolts against the bolshevist régime, in Georgia, in Azerbaijan, and now, it is reported, in the Crimea, must touch our sympathy and our pity without exciting much hope for their success.

They seem to be the immediate effects of acute economic conditions rather than of political reaction against sovietism. A delayed dispatch of Mr. Fendrick of The Tribune Foreign News Service, from Trebizon, notes that the workers in the Baku oil fields have joined the revolt because of the infinitesimal government pay and the peasants because of the low price of wheat fixed by the government. Socialism is not bringing the proletarian prosperity in that district. Meanwhile, in spite of the food shortage in the Crimea, the government has exported in July and August, writes Mr. Seldes from Berlin, five million bushels of wheat, virtually confiscated from the peasants. Hence mobs and riots in Sebastopol, Odessa, and other points, with repressive measures to suit.

A dismal prospect. What can be hoped from peasant uprisings in the Caucasus and mobs in Crimea? Little, we fear, save more suffering and misery. The vast distances and primitive character of the people make the organization of an effective rebellion an almost impossible task, and besides the mere physical difficulties, there is lacking a common purpose. Bread revolts do not involve a lasting tie upon which a persistent, unified movement can be formed.

It is said that the Turkish government is watching the developments in the Caucasus with interest and Mr. Fendrick has cabled from Constantinople, to which he has returned from the Russian frontier, that an extraordinary order has been issued by the Turkish government forbidding travel to Angora or the frontier zone, without official permission, on account of military movements in connection with the revolt in the Caucasus. Perhaps the spread of the disturbances in Georgia may have encouraged the Turkish government to believe that with aid Georgia and Azerbaijan might recover independence and be drawn into the Turkish orbit. That would be a result highly useful to Turkey, not only because buffer states are convenient but also the diversion of the oil and other products of the Caucasus would be profitable.

But the power of Moscow with its Red army, well equipped and well led, is not easily opposed, as the history of the various White revolts has proved. A great deal of property will be destroyed, the lives of many people, unhappy and obscure, will be taken, but we doubt if anything good can reasonably be expected. It takes an advanced people, with unusual capacity for practical action and cooperation, plus favorable circumstances, to shake such a power as has entrenched itself at Moscow.

That is the Russian tragedy. The Russian people have been thrown out of the path of sound political and economic evolution into the bolshevik morass, and, in the absence of a miracle, must struggle painfully back, with much effort and sacrifice which need not have been. The backward tyranny of czardom gave place to the still more backward tyranny of communism, and it will cost much blood and martyrdom to work back. Yet the ordeal must be accepted. Probably it is only through revolts that seem premature and foreshadowed to failure that the road will be built. Yet it may be that the bolshevik tyrant will some day fall as czardom fell, suddenly and without warning.

HE DOESN'T BELONG.

For some reason John W. Davis isn't striking fire in his western campaign tour.

His speeches are excellent samples of the inventive art. His words are hot and rapid. He speaks with much indignation touching the Republican party. But he doesn't stir them. They do not flame. They do not go into a frenzy of political emotion and respond to Mr. Davis' eloquence as reasonable Democrats ought to do in a campaign year for as nice a man as is Mr. Davis.

The trouble is that Mr. Davis doesn't fit the picture. He has come out of a life smug with contentment, equipped with every labor saving device, enjoying elaborate fees from his millionaire clients, with a refuse from the caring care in an exclusive Long Island home, far from the pasting multitudes who had Bob La Follette and Foster and Gompers and Lenin as their ideals.

He doesn't fit the picture. He has been doing well. His heart isn't torn with emotions for the government having radical. He has always been working the other side of the street. Now, thrown into the campaign and bidden to strike fire and keep the radical vote shooting for the Democratic ticket, he cannot do it, because his soul isn't in the performance.

He's like a man who brings a good mounted horse to play in the iron workers' brand hand.

Without proper upkeep, naval depreciation is rapid and dangerous. It is as untrue from a business point of view as it is dangerous materially to allow these costly properties to run down.

With an air service already disgracefully inadequate, with the Florida ready to go out of commission for the want of repairs, with other ships limping through maneuvers for lack of modern equipment, with too few light cruisers and almost no scouting service, it is evident that this is no time to cut the navy budget.

THE KINDERGARTEN AGE.

THE kindergarten child is a sub-group of the pre-school children.

The kindergarten age embraces the last two years of the pre-school age.

While the kindergarten period does not rank with the first four years of life in rate of growth, it is in the rate of development, rate of social attainment, death rate, and contagion rate, it outranks any two years in later life of the individual.

The Woman's Community council of Minneapolis studied 1,000 of the 6,000 kindergarteners in that city. Of this group of children more than half had been breast fed until they were more than two years old and less than 40 per cent had been exclusively bottle fed.

Plainly, breast feeding is the norm in Minneapolis, and is one reason for their low baby death rate.

Of the kindergarteners, more than a fourth drank tea or coffee at home and a fifth did not get enough milk. One of the worst faults was the unregulated use of candy and sweets. About a third of all the mothers reported that they allowed their children to eat candy and sweets as they pleased. Only 10 per cent reported their children were not allowed candy or sweets.

Nearly half the children had break-fasts that the investigators thought inadequate. Nearly 40 per cent of the children were reported as irregular about their home noon lunch and about a fourth of them ate what they pleased, when they pleased.

Eighty-four per cent of these children took neither a morning nor an afternoon nap; 165 did not get enough sleep.

Half the mothers interviewed said they did not allow their kindergarteners to attend the picnics; 115 babies were reported as attending moving picture shows weekly. Seventy children, in addition to kindergartens, took dancing lessons, music lessons, or dramatics.

As to discipline, 693 families reported they had been through punishment, 284 trained through punishment, and 193 by corporal punishment.

The parents in 193 families reported their children incorrigible. Of this group of 1,000 children, 145 had defective teeth. The next most frequent defect was enlarged tonsils and adenoids.

This study does not appear to have included prevalence of contagion. Other

AGITATION FOR FREEDOM
GROWING IN PORTO RICO

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

(Copyright: 1924; By The Chicago Tribune.)

BY LARRY RUE.

SAN JUAN, Porto Rico, Sept. 18.—With the exception of the fact that the governor is appointed by the President of the United States, Porto Rico enjoys practical statehood. A regularly elected legislature adopts laws and collects taxes. The governor has power to veto, and furthermore he makes appointments. He is not, however, all the appointments are made by the power of the legislature, and appropriates money for public funds sometimes private uses and has a great latitude in initiating public projects.

By the Jones act, adopted in 1907, the name and privileges of American citizenship were bestowed upon all citizens of the island. This was the culmination of agitation beginning with the organization of the independence movement in 1908 by Munoz Marquez, who died during the war, but is still mourned as a national hero. But Marquez, who originally wanted to break away from the United States, after sitting in Congress for a couple of years as a radical congressman, became imbued by our principles of democracy, learned to speak English, satisfied himself that the United States government possessed no ideas of imperialism, returned to his native island, called a meeting and advised all Porto Ricans to abandon independence and devote their efforts to becoming a national and economic unit with the United States.

This was the mature advice of the great man whose name appears foremost on the historical list of Porto Rico statesmen and patriots.

So little of the United States interfered with the life of the people, outside of giving them a relatively honest government, that Spanish has been retained as the language of the island. Even today, after twenty-five years of United States rule, it is possible to meet hundreds of Porto Ricans, American citizens, who neither read nor speak English.

The demands of Antonio Barcello, present leader of those demanding independence, are described as "sovereignty within a sovereignty." This is the real program of the delegates who at Washington in April, 1924, asked for the right to elect their own government.

REPLY.

1. Rapidly growing children are very apt to have nosebleeds. The growth of the blood vessels does not quite keep up with the growth of the bone, and the nosebleed is a common cause. 2. We had her tonsils and adenoids taken out, thinking that was the cause, but this has shown no results. 100 per cent of children have tonsils and adenoids.

3. What causes her to sleep with her mouth wide open?

4. Can what causes her to have a bad breath in the morning? It is very heavy.

1. What are the facts? The Unionists party after a coalition with the deserters of the Republican party control 125,000 votes. The Republican deserters were lured by the lure of office. The Unionists are known as the anti-American party. The Republicans, together, control 123,000 votes. Members of these parties, embracing the leading business men and educators on the island, vigorously oppose the tendency to estrange the Porto Rican government from United States supervision as much for political as for economic reasons. We must have a state government.

Air Crackles with Politics, Elmer Finds

Hears Dever, Davis, and Some Knocking.

BY ELMER DOUGLASS.

Well, we are into politics again, but we are in a similar position to the banquet speaker who gets up and makes the assertion that he doesn't know what he's supposed to say.

On the strength of this, when a presidential aspirant is to speak, the early musical programs lose something of their customary value.

So it was with keen interest that at 8:30 an announcer at W-G-N said, "Please stand by just a moment: we are about ready to broadcast the address of John W. Davis, and other speakers, direct from the Drake pavilion. The first voice heard probably will be that of Mayor Dever."

At 8:35, just as though the connection was made. A hand was playing; hurrahs, bells, whistles. Suddenly an unannounced soprano, full-toned and with emotional vibrato in her voice, began singing "The Star Spangled Banner."

All of this was pleasant reminder of convention days. Voices again. "What's the matter with John?" "Laughter. "Knock, knock, knock, knock, knock, knock. "A voice, "Put out that light?" Knock, knock, knock, knock again. "What's that light, that light?" (Where's "Sen" to tell us what about that light anyhow? Did he get lost? When signing off at 7:30 he stated he was hurrying out to the pavilion.) "Knock, knock, knock."

Elmer Dever's voice was then heard, keeping the audience to be quiet. After a short address he introduced Mr. Davis. W-G-N went that microphonophone racket music—yes, it's quite musical to radio attuned ears.

It was 8:51 when Mr. Davis began speaking and 9:45 when he closed. My shorthand notes show applause marks on several pages. Mr. Davis is a good speaker of feels and earnestness. And for contrast he tells a story or indulges in an "aside."

Whether we always agree with the speaker or not, sober, thoughtful speeches make us think. They bring the larger political issues home, making them a personal affair.

An outstanding feature of this rather dignified broadcast was the introductions by Mayor Dever. Have just read of these over the air, the one introducing Col. A. A. Sprague, and it is a gem, a mullum in part.

Hope we have space to include brief reference to the second anniversary of "Twenty Minutes of Good Reading" by the Rev. C. J. Ferris at KXYW. It's on the first of the month, the 21st. "The Gift of the Magi" by O. Henry. Doctor, we join your many friends in congratulations and the hope that we may enjoy many more "Twenty Minutes of Good Reading."

GIRL RULES FOR MOTHER WHEN ACTS AS 'COURT'

Glady Branhagen, 17, was given control of her own fate in the Juvenile court before Judge Victor P. Arnold yesterday.

Her father, Albert H. Branhagen of Evanston, and her mother both sought control of the girl. The judge let her decide and she left the courtroom with her mother.

The judge had been unable to decide on the basis of the testimony of either parent.

TODAY'S RADIO PROGRAMS

(Friday, Sept. 19) (Daylight Saving Time Throughout)

W-G-N FEATURES

Station W-G-N will attempt a unique "stunt" in broadcasting this afternoon.

At 3 o'clock an army airplane, flying from Chicago's field, Chicago, Ill., piloted by Lieut. Hickey, will broadcast news of the benefit air meet to be held at the air field on Sunday. The plane's broadcasting will be picked up by a special set in the W-G-N station on the Drake hotel and retransmit simultaneously. If successful the event will attain a new milestone in radio's progress.

The Verdi duo, Mike Alongi and Charles Radosta, who are adept on the accordion, guitar, mandolin and tenor banjo, will be heard this evening from W-G-N (formerly WDAF). The Chicago TRIBUNE station on the Drake hotel. They will employ their variety of musical instruments in an interesting program.

On the same program will be Arthur Angel, tenor; Nina Jolyn, soprano, and William Benson, tenor.

RAIL CHIEFS ACT FOR STEADY KEEL IN EMPLOYMENT

New York, Sept. 18.—[Special.]—Stabilization of employment in the railroad industry was set in motion today by the executive committee of the Association of Railroad Executives meeting at the Yale club. The roads represented employ directly more than 2,000,000 persons and indirectly provide employment for approximately 3,000,000 more in all parts of the United States. Last year these roads spent more than $6,000,000 on labor equipment and supplies.

The railroad executives went on record as advocating elimination of seasonal employment as far as possible. They favored methods for avoiding reduction of employment in production in dull seasons and strongly expressed themselves in favor of distributing expenditures more equally between times of depression and times of prosperity.

Then they went one step further by appointing a committee of practical railroad men with records for obtaining results, to put the plan in operation. Members of the committee are Samuel Rea, president of the Pennsylvania railroad; Daniel Willard, president of the B. & O.; P. E. Crowley, president, New York Central lines; C. R. Gray, president, Union Pacific; E. J. Pierson, president, New York, New Haven and Hartford; J. Kruttschnitt, chair of the board, Southern Pacific; W. R. Cole, president, Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis; H. E. Bryant, president, Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul; L. W. Baldwin, president, Missouri Pacific; and L. F. CARL M. HEDMAN, CHECK WRITER INVENTOR, DIES

Carl M. Hedman, president of Hedman Manufacturing company, 1155 Center street, and one of the most prominent Chicagoans of Swedish descent, died suddenly at his home, 618 Waveland avenue, Wednesday night.

Mr. Hedman was born in Sweden sixty years ago. Most of his business career centered in Chicago. He was particularly well known in banking and business circles throughout the United States. Last year these roads spent more than $6,000,000 on labor equipment and supplies.

The railroad executives went on record as advocating elimination of seasonal employment as far as possible. They favored methods for avoiding reduction of employment in production in dull seasons and strongly expressed themselves in favor of distributing expenditures more equally between times of depression and times of prosperity.

CHIC

BRIDE IN THILL DEATH WILL BE ARRAIGNED TODAY

(Picture on back page.)

Mrs. Sarah Hagerty, the demure "Peggy" of Anthony C. Thill, married broker of Wilmette, led to his son's death late Tuesday night, will be arraigned in Shakespeare avenue today on a disorderly conduct charge.

With her will be arraigned her husband, Clarence Hagerty, and a friend of the latter, Hamilton Black. It was while fleeing from the fists of these two men, who had followed when Thill took Mrs. Hagerty for a ride in his car, that the broker rushed in the path of another machine and was killed.

Black and the Hagerty couple were arrested early yesterday, after police had searched for them for twenty-four hours.

The trio were present at the coroner's inquest in an Evanston undertaking parlor. The inquiry was not attended, however, by Mrs. Thill, who remained at home with her three small children—the oldest 5 years, the youngest 6 months.

"Peggy" Nervous at Inquest.

The widow was represented at the inquest by her sister-in-law, Miss Anna Thill of 5247 Berendo avenue. The latter disclaimed any knowledge of her brother's interest in other women. His family had been irreproachable, she said.

As Miss Thill testified, Mrs. Hagerty, a girl of 21, who is better known to her friends as "Peggy," sat a few yards away, facing Deputy Coroner Charles H. Flizner. Her bobbed brown hair was slightly disheveled. She was nervous.

After witnesses of the accident had described how Thill was caught by the pursuing husband and friend, and then escaped with their traps, had run in front of a passing automobile, Flizner placed "Peggy" on the stand. He told her she did not have to testify. "I'd rather not talk, then," the girl replied quietly.

Her story was read into the record, however, by Sgt. Peter D. Kinnally, who told of her arrest. The story told of "Peggy's" friendship for Thill before her marriage. At that time, she had informed police, she did not know that the broker was married.

Then the girl's statement went on to tell how Thill followed her home one day. He declared that he loved her, she said, and that he meant to have her despite her young husband. Then last Tuesday night he met her again and induced her to ride with him.

"I entered his car with only one purpose: to give him final warning that he must quit annoying me," the girl said in her statement.

It was while she was giving Thill this "final warning" that her husband and Black appeared and the fatal accident happened. The coroner's jury decided that Thill's death had been unavoidable. No recommendations concerning "Peggy" or her husband were embodied in the verdict.

Astonished at Results of Tribune Want Ads

"THERE were so many replies that we couldn't take care of them all. There must have been 22 calls on the only day the ad appeared. People phoned for several days after the place was rented. The results were astonishing; I am glad that I thought of using The Tribune to find a tenant."

Mrs. J. Hayden, 5002 W. Fulton St., said this of her Want Ad that was published one time on a Tuesday.

TO RENT—2 BR. COTTAGE, BROWNS
FIELD, lovely yard, w. w. heat; furn. $250 a week, with 2 yr. lease on end. Furn. is rented. Call Mrs. J. Hayden to rec. part. Rented now. Ph. Austin 4268.

She was astonished at the good results, but they were exactly as they should have been. She described her offer carefully, giving readers a clear word-picture of the house. She placed this attractive description before the great mass of people who are accustomed to satisfying their wants through Tribune Want Ads. Advertisers who do this are bound to get results, just as Mrs. Hayden did.

They persecuted a woman for doing what these women are going to do!

IN THE YEAR that the Woman's Home Companion was founded Susan B. Anthony was hooted from the platform for attempting to make a suffrage speech.

That was fifty-one years ago.

Today an extraordinary thing is taking place in these same United States. Aroused by the fact that in 1920 less than 50 per cent of the qualified voters voted, 2,000,000 women are organizing to make sure that the election in November is decided by a majority—organizing, in other words, to get out the whole vote.

These 2,000,000 women are the readers of Woman's Home Companion.

Their interest in politics is not new; it has a twelve-year background. In 1912, foreseeing suffrage, the Companion began devoting important space to national political issues. Four years ago it established its "Good Citizenship Bureau"; and in the past few months this Bureau has received and answered more than 100,000 letters, and furnished—in response to direct request—more than 200,000 pieces of literature.

THIS does not mean that women are "leaving the home." It does not mean that the older feminine tasks and obligations suffer.

That truth stands out unmistakably in every number of the Companion—in the October number now on sale. You will find it in Marguerite Mooers Marshall's unusual distinction between books that make you think and books that keep you from thinking. You will find it in Grace Torrey's woman-on-the-jury story; in Floyd Dell's arresting story of marriage; in twenty-one pages devoted to smart fall fashions; in "What Men Don't Like in Women's Looks"; in the ten-year-old Better Babies Bureau, and the sixteen other departments founded for women and perpetuated by women's compelling needs.

No, women are not leaving the home for politics. They are in politics, and in to stay. But they are taking the home with them.

See this for yourself, in the October number now on sale. The variety of its contents will surprise you. Here is every phase of woman's interest in its proper balance and proportion—a balance which only the instinct of a woman editor could give, and to which women instinctively respond.

SAYS LEN'S DEBT TO STATE BARS HIM FROM RACE

Constitution Forbids It,
Martin J. O'Brien Says.

BY PARKE BROWN.

In the second fall issue of Democratic News, a campaign bulletin issued from his headquarters, Martin J. O'Brien, chairman of the Democratic campaign management committee, claims that Gov. Len Small is "debarred by the constitution" from holding his office.

"The state of Illinois," reads the bulletin, "through its law department, is endeavoring to recover from Gov. Small a sum variously estimated as between $1,500,000 and $2,000,000."

Small charged with having pocketed that money during his own term as state treasurer and subsequently during the succeeding term of Fred Sterling.

Says Packers Gave Notes.

The money represented interest upon state funds loaned to packers during the world war. The packers gave notes bearing as high as 8 per cent interest to Small as security for the people's money thus diverted to their uses.

It was the greatest cleanup in the history of public treasury management.

"The constitution of the state of Illinois specifically debars from holding public office any person who owes a debt to the state. There can be no sort of doubt about Small's liability for the very large sum belonging to the people, notwithstanding that he denies that such is the case.

"Small cannot legally hold the office of governor."

Alarm in Small Camp.

Advance rumors of the publication of this article have already brought about the cause of a recent sudden alarm in the Small camp that the suit for the recovery of this interest would be made the basis of an effort to keep his name off the ballot in November.

According to an editorial in a friendly afternoon newspaper, the alleged plot was to hasten a meeting in the present session now pending at Springfield and to have that ruling in order proceedings to bar Small as a candidate.

Lawyers hold that the alarm was needless. The court order now sought at Springfield is an order for an accounting. It is not the accounting itself. If Small loses in this battle there will still be the accounting to go through and that probably would require several months' time.

HOLDS WARSHIP STILL HOLDS OWN WITH AIRPLANE

PARIS, Sept. 18.—[By the Associated Press.]—The theory that airplanes will some day be able to bring up in offensive and defensive war is rejected in an article in Le Temps.

The article was prompted by a report from Washington that President Coolidge has no sympathy with efforts to increase the naval budget and feels it is better to spend money on aircraft than on capital ships.

Le Temps takes issue with Mr. Coolidge's report which claims it does not mention the President's attention to the airplane's failure as a bombing power against capital ships, and refers to the destruction by aircraft of the American warships New Jersey and Virginia on Cape Hatteras in September, 1922.

"Despite the fact," declares the article, "that the bombardments were conducted under particularly favorable conditions, that the weather was clear and the sea calm, and that the battleships were at anchor, the airplanes were not able to do effective bombing until they reached the low altitude of 500 meters."

PANAMA DROPS HIGH TARIFFS ON NECESSITIES

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]—COLON, Panama, Sept. 18.—Panama plans the abolition of taxes on necessities, according to Amadeo Morales, who informed Colon business men this morning that the government plans to institute a 2 per cent sales tax. Señor Morales was a guest with Ricardo Alfaro, Panama's minister in Washington, at a luncheon at Washington hotel of W. Y. Boyd, member of the firm of Goethals, Wilford & Boyd, who represented Panama.

"We plan to abolish the present import duty of 10 and 15 per cent, substituted by a tariff of 20 per cent on textiles and 5 per cent on necessities, together with a sales tax reducing the tariff half in two years and abolishing it in four years," Mr. Morales said.

"Despite the fact," declares the article, "that the bombardments were conducted under particularly favorable conditions, that the weather was clear and the sea calm, and that the battleships were at anchor, the airplanes were not able to do effective bombing until they reached the low altitude of 500 meters."

Good Want Ads Are Money-Savers For Landlords

Quick action is necessary when rooms are to be rented. Each day of vacancy robs the landlord of the rent money that he should be getting. It is therefore foolish to invest in inefficient advertising methods simply because they are cheap. Action is what is needed, and only the best methods can find tenants promptly. Tribune Want Ads, bringing prompt action from room seekers, produce profits for landlords.

Mrs. Mary Haller, 215 E. 18th St., used this Tribune Want Ad a short time ago when she wished to locate renters:

EIGHTEENTH-ST. E. 215—TO RENT—TWO

jection to children; res. Calumet 2670.

"The results were wonderful," she said.

'GET OUT—VOTE!' DAWES TELLS ROCKFORD FOLKS

Lambastes La Follette in Two Minute Speech.

BY PHILIP KINSLEY.
Freight, Ill., Sept. 18.—[Special.]

"Before I get through with this campaign I will spill enough beans to break the bean market," Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes told a Rockford audience of several thousand tonight when his train stopped there a few minutes on the way to South Dakota.

The general tried to catch a speech on the constitution and the same in which it is being attacked into three minutes. He finished in two.

"Give us another speech. We are with you," said a man in the crowd.

"Get out and vote" said the general. "no matter what side you are on—vote."

In discussing the constitution Gen. Dawes said the La Follette proposal would make the rights of the people, right to choose your own church, to own property, and trial by jury, he said, were the inalienable rights of the American citizen, which it was proposed to turn over to the mercy of La Follette. He mentioned La Follette and his red flag followers.

"It's right, give them hell," said one.

"Choose between Coolidge, who stands for the rock of the constitution, or the shifting sand of socialism," was his party word.

INTO RADICAL ZONE

Brig. Gen. Charles G. Dawes started westward again last night to carry his "nonpolitical" and "commonsense" argument on agricultural problems into South Dakota, the heart of the radical belt. He will speak tomorrow in the armory at Sioux City, giving without any evasions to the criticisms that have been directed at him since he talked discouragingly of new reclamation projects at Lincoln on Aug. 29.

Democrats have taken advantage quickly of this reclamation angle of the Dawes speech and politicians in his own party have warned him to go slowly in this matter.

Sen. Borah of Idaho is one who is said to take exception to it, as there are many projects in his own state. But Gen. Dawes will go ahead, insisting that, with all other major farm problems, must be considered by the new Coolidge farm commission and that reclamation cannot be petitioned for the sake of gaining votes. He would consider the whole question of production and regulation in connection with prices.

Gen. Dawes will be met at Rock Rapids, Ia., by a Dakota delegation headed by George Wright, chairman of the Republican central committee. Neighborhood meetings have been arranged through the state at which the Dawes speech will be heard by radio. No other addresses have been planned for this trip and Gen. Dawes will return to Chicago Saturday evening.

Senator Charles Curtis of Kansas and former Gov. W. L. Harding of Iowa conferred with Republican managers yesterday. Senator Curtis said:

"President Coolidge will carry Kansas by 100,000. My colleague, Senator Capper, will be elected without any trouble. I have received very encouraging reports from Oklahoma."

Payne Defends Dawes.

An effort by the La Follette-Wheeler campaign committee to injure Brig.

Gen. Charles G. Dawes' candidacy for Vice President by sending out a statement purporting to show an improper act by Dawes in connection with the Lorimer bank case was met last night by a formal statement from John Burton Payne, secretary of the interior, president of the American Red Cross and now chairman of the American Red Cross.

Mr. Payne, who is thoroughly familiar with every aspect of the case, declared that there was no basis for criticism of Mr. Dawes and quotes from the Appellate court of Illinois that the Central Trust company and Dawes acted "entirely innocently" in the Lorimer case.

The Democratic campaign committee, it is understood, after looking into the facts of the case, declined to use it as campaign material.

Business Men Plan for Big Waterways Banquet

Plans for the "waterways banquet" to be held Oct. 6, in Chicago, for the purpose of boosting the Illinois waterways, were disclosed yesterday by former Mayor William Hale Thompson at a meeting with eighty prominent business men at the Sherman hotel.

miliar with every aspect of the case, declared that there was no basis for criticism of Mr. Dawes and quotes from the Appellate court of Illinois that the Central Trust company and Dawes acted "entirely innocently" in the Lorimer case.

SCHWAB DROPS HIS PITTSBURGH BASING SYSTEM

THEY FALL IN LINE

New York, Sept. 18.—Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem Steel corporation, stated today that, as the United States Steel corporation had announced its intention to abandon the "Pittsburgh plus" plan, the Bethlehem Steel corporation, in conducting its steel business, no longer would quote prices using Pittsburgh as a basing point.

(BY A STAFF CORRESPONDENT.)
Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special]—Members of the federal trade commission expressed complete satisfaction.

fact today with the United States Steel corporation's notice of compliance with the order abolishing the Pittsburgh plus price system.

The notice of compliance was regarded at the offices of the commission as in every way meeting the intent of the order, indicating a genuine effort to wipe out the Pittsburgh plus practice under which prices of rolled steel products have included freight from Pittsburgh even when shipped from less distant points.

Subsidiaries to Obey Order.

It was learned today that R. V. Lindabury, general counsel of the United States Steel corporation, in a letter to the commission stated that even subsidiaries not affected by the order will do away with the Pittsburgh basing system. The particular company Mr. Lindabury had in mind, the National Tube company, was named as a respondent in the original complaint, but was not included in the order ordering the abolishment of the Pittsburgh plus system.

There has been some speculation as to why the National Tube company was not named in the original order. This is the steel corporation's subsidiary which manufactures pipe. The explanation for dismissing the complaint as to this company seemed to be that it placed its products at Pittsburgh, and it was not present in its case to use a Pittsburgh base in making quotations.

No Significance in Reservation.

The reservation made by the steel corporation in its notice of compliance are not regarded by members of the commission as of any significance. The corporation and its subsidiaries stated that hereafter they will conform to the order "as far as it is practicable to do so" and "without admitting the validity of said order or the jurisdiction of the commission to make the same."

According to the view of officials of the commission the attorneys for the steel company in framing the notice probably thought it best to make these reservations in case future difficulties should arise, but without any intention of fighting the case further in the federal courts.

At the federal trade commission the belief is expressed that the case is now entirely closed. Inasmuch as no request has been made for an extension of time in which to abolish the Pittsburgh plus system the order takes effect at once.

There has been some speculation as to why the National Tube company was not named in the original order.

CHARGES RETAIL 'HOLDUP' IN PRICE OF BUTTER HERE

Retailers of storage butter are holding up the public, George McKay, secretary of the American Creamery Butter Manufacturers association, declared yesterday in explanation of government figures showing an increase of $3,501,000 pounds in storage butter on Sept. 1, 1924, compared to the same date last year.

The figures show that the wholesale price of the best grade of storage butter on Sept. 1, this year, was 39 cents, compared with 49 cents on Sept. 1, 1923. Retail prices for the same grade ranged from 53 to 55 cents last year and 54 to 60 cents this year.

Hair Glint

How I get it with a secret shampoo.

By Edna Wallace Hopper

My hair is like a halo. Every woman who sees me on the stage or in society wonders at its beauty and its glint.

I owe this to a shampoo. Some wonderful scientists prepared it for me, but they never told me the secret. They tell me that its chief effects come from two great factors they conceal.

But they, at my urging, are making it for you. It is called Edna Wallace Hopper's Fruity Shampoo. Every drug and toilet counter supplies it for 60 cents.

I recommend it to you. I have used shampoos to the score, but I never found one which brought these effects. I love them—so will you.

Please go try it. I have told your dealer to return your money if you are not delighted. But if you get what I get you will thank me for it always.

I urge anyone who admires my beautiful hair to quit the commonplace shampoo and see what this can do. Ask for my Fruity Shampoo.

WHEN a feller needs a friend, if that feller is a dog, is when the boss and the boss' family live in a small apartment. Even if the feller is only a toy Boston bull, he has to have some place to gallop around.

Mrs. H. Rau, at 4615 Lincoln Avenue, knew that her pet was without the freedom a dog needs. And much as she hated to part with him, she knew it would be better to find him a larger home. But how to find that home?

Why not consult a Tribune Adtaker? So she ordered this ad placed under the "Dog" classification of the Sunday Tribune of May 18:

BOSTON BULL, 8 mos., male, very active, ready to fight pretty. Hobbies. $5.75.

She told us, "I was able to find a good home for my dog through the ad I had in your paper. There were a large number of calls Sunday and even all day yesterday. It almost broke my heart to have to sell him, but none of my friends could take him, so I had to find some one who could and would give him a good home. And my Want Ad did it."

LEGION GUNNERS RAKE PACIFISTS AND POLITICIANS

Vets Demand U. S. Fleet
Rank with Best.

BY MORROW KRUM:
St. Paul, Minn., Sept. 18.—(Special.)

The fighting spirit that drove them through the German lines six years ago animated the delegates of the American Legion here in convention today. The Yanks passed resolutions that were sharp in their rhetoric, strong in their demands for action, and American in every word.

The Women's International League of Peace and Freedom, the youth movement, the Workers' Party of America, and the Third International came in for thoroughoughly drubbing. The Veterans' Bureau said it has been casting over this meeting were roundly scored. The veterans' bureau was informed what improvements must be had during the next year, and by an indirect route President Coolidge was told that the Legion wants our naval guns to be as powerful as any nation's earth.

The first explosion came when

Edson K. Bixby, legionnaire from Oklahoma, and chairman of the Americanism committee, proposed that the convention go on record calling the various pacifistic organizations in America by their right names, and telling them the Legion is against them and will do what it can to destroy them. The resolution brought one objection. A delegate said he did not believe the pacifistic organizations should be mentioned by name.

Chase Pacifists, Demand.

Brothers, let's fight these pacifists who think that will be effective," shouted Bixby. "Let's call spades spades, and let's chase them out of the country."

The Yanks jumped to their feet and cheered. The resolution, which incorporated Bixby's ideas, was passed.

Another burst of fire came when a resolution was introduced demanding that all officials of the Legion, acting as such, keep out of politics. Willie Adams, commander of Colorado, went to the platform and said the Legion should not stop him "from working for his friend, Senator Adams of Colorado, for reelection."

Mr. Ham hadn't understood the resolution. He thought that no legionnaire would be permitted to do political work as a private citizen. He was enlightened and withdrew his motion, but not before there was a roar of disapproval from the delegates.

Rule Against Politics.

The legionnaires know that the feelings of the two political parties are stretching out over the veteran vote. They passed the resolution and passed it with great applause.

By the resolution the Legion will not be in politics this year.

Then came the navy gun problem.

C. V. Spahr of Michigan read the resolution.

"We demand that congress and the naval department take steps immediately to place our battle fleet on an absolute parity with the strongest navy in the world in the matter of range and power of guns," he read.

Elevate Guns, Is Demand.

"To this end it is believed that the elevation of guns of our fleet, as recommended by the navy department, should be accomplished at the earliest possible opportunity." Another roar, another falling of the legs of the convention had given

President Coolidge their idea on naval armament. This resolution came from the delegates of Illinois. Charles W.

Edson K. Bixby, Legionnaire from

Oklahoma, and chairman of the Americanism committee, proposed that the convention call a resolution

against the navy bureau's demands.

"Daddy" Schick wrote it and Illinois backed it.

J. M. Dickerson of Chicago, chairman of the rehabilitation committee, read the resolution of the veterans' bureau.

It, like the others, was signed to the bureau, just as there is to the army and navy. There must be a speedier adjustment of claims."

ENGLAND FACES GRAVE ISSUES IN AFRICA, EUROPE

GERMANY MUST PAY $65,000,000
FOR U. S. CLAIMS

Lusitania Insurance
Not Awarded.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—Awards totaling more than $65,000,000, a sum which exceeds the aggregate of all previous awards and includes approximately $34,700,000 to sixty-one American insurance companies and $24,300,000 to the veterans' bureau. Were handed down today by the U. S. German claims commission.

The commission also ruled that twelve American life insurance companies could not hold Germany responsible for losses incurred on eighteen policies insuring eleven persons killed in the Lusitania disaster.

Empire Makes Decision.

Judge Edwin B. Parker, umpire of the commission, handed down the decision in the Lusitania case after the commissioners for the respective countries were unable to agree. The two commissioners, however, handed down sixty-six awards in individual claims of various kinds, totaling $6,271,434.81.

The awards to the veterans' bureau and sixty-one insurance companies for damages sustained by American insurers as a result of losses on hulls and barges due to warlike operations.

In the Lusitania award Judge Parker said he dismissed the claims against Germany for the reason that "the losses on which these claims are based are not in legal contemplation attributed to Germany's act as a proximate cause."

"The act of Germany," Judge Parker added, "is bringing down an invading army, not in legal contemplation proximately resulting in damage to all of those who had contract relations, direct or remote, with that individual, which may have been affected by his death."

Ten Cases Picked.

Ten typical cases were picked out in the Lusitania report by Robert W. Bonnyng, the American agent, on behalf of the twelve American insurance companies who sought to recover from Germany losses resulting from payments to beneficiaries.

Dr. Kari von Lewinski, the German agent, denied the liability of his government under the treaty of Aug. 26, 1921, between the United States and Germany.

The two commissioners were unable to agree on the decision the American commissioner, Charles P. Anderson holding that the claims were justified and should be allowed, while the German commissioner, Dr. Wilhelm Kiesebach, declared them unjustified.

MARITAL KNOT, CUT TWO WAYS, STILL IN COURT

Another court action, to take place this morning, will leave Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bowers, 2652 Lincoln Park west, more bewildered than ever as to their marital status.

Three months ago Bowers, who is 26, was granted a divorce from his wife, Mildred Sanders Bowers, 18, by Judge Joseph B. David. Wednesday, Mrs. Bowers, won annulment of the decree from the same judge, charging that testimony of infidelity, used against her, was perjured.

This morning Bowers will appear before Judge Harry A. Lewis to ask that the action by Judge David be set aside.

FRANCE BEGINS EVACUATION OF BIG RUHR TOWNS

BY HENRY WALES.

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

[Copyright: 1924, by The Chicago Tribune.]

LONDON, Sept. 18.—International trouble is piling up for Prime Minister MacDonald, who is now on his way from Scotland to London in his gift and endowed motor car. When he arrives on Saturday night he will find new trouble in Africa waiting to be solved, while problems complicate the negotiations with Zogulah Pasha over the Sudan. This is a demand from Premier Mussolini from the cession of Zollum, on the borders of the Italian province of Libya and Egypt. Zollum is now Egyptian territory, and Egypt declines to give it up, reminding England that under the declaration by which Egypt became its independent Empire and announced that any attempt by any other power to interfere with its sovereignty would be regarded as an unfriendly act.

Complicated by Pledges.

The situation is also complicated by events before the Egyptian independence. When Italy entered the war, England promised the rectification of its African frontiers. In pursuance of this plan England turned over to Italy recently a large part of country in Rhodesia and had the protectorate of Rhodesia continued; it probably would have given Zollum, too.

There also is a possibility of a dispute over the Dodecanese, which Premier Mussolini has announced his intention of formally annexing.

Another matter which promises trouble for Mr. MacDonald is the development of security negotiations in Germany. It is understood that Great Britain is pledged under a proposed pact to place its fleet at the service of the League of Nations for police duties. Mr. MacDonald has already promised to do something of the kind.

Trade Treaty With Germany. The next problem is that of a trade treaty with Germany, made necessary by the expiration of the most favored nation clause in the Versailles treaty next January. Considerable anxiety is at London over the recent rapprochement between the French and German governments on commercial matters.

Events are developing rapidly in the negotiations for an Irish settlement on the lines of two equal dominions. Patrick Mayott, one of the men who conducted the first negotiations with Downing street which led to the Anglo-Irish treaty, had a long conference with Mr. MacDonald in Scotland a few days ago and, it is believed, secured his approval for a plan which also has the approval of the Free State government.

James Craig, premier of Ulster, may issue a formal statement that he is not aware of any attempt to arrange a further conference between the Free State and Ulster, but he held out another invitation to President Coolidge to make a move in that direction. It is not likely that much will be accomplished before the return of H. Thomas, colonial secretary, from Africa.

LEAGUE REACHES AGREEMENT ON SANCTIONS PLAN

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

GENEVA, Sept. 18.—The League of nations subcommittee on disarmament and security, created following Premier Herriot's and Prime Minister MacDonald's "accord," finished its arduous labors on the subject of military sanctions today and announced a complete agreement.

The agreement is only "in principle," however, and even on the subject of sanctions—which is only one part of the whole scheme for guarantees and security—there still remain several points to be settled.

The discussion in the Benes commission continued three hours this afternoon, with bitter arguments on the question of whether or not the protocol for security should go into effect before or after the proposed international disarmament conference meets. No agreement was reached and the discussion will be resumed tomorrow.

The French proposal to establish an institute of intellectual cooperation in Paris was accepted, although the British for four days past have been making an effort to get it either in London or London and Paris both.

FINE MAHOGANY

[Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.]

PARIS, Sept. 18.—Economic evacuation of the Dortmund-Essen area in the Ruhr is progressing rapidly and troop movements will begin in those districts about Oct. 15, it was announced at the Quai d'Orsay today.

The towns of Gruben and Ennepetal were completely evacuated today.

They belong to the Oberberg district and were taken by the French in order to establish a customs barrier between the Ruhr and unoccupied Germany.

Many Losses.

Hundreds of shopkeepers, telephoners, clerks and bookkeepers are being demobilized this week as the result of cessation of the customs barrier and abolition of various services which supplied safe conduct passes and automobile permits to the Ruhr population.

No troops can actually leave the territory under occupation until the railroad is turned over to the Germans, but this is being done as rapidly as possible. Kronenberg, near Frankfort, was evacuated today.

Stop Building Barracks.

At Bonn the French authorities have abandoned the Poincaré project of building a new barracks for which the portion of the town was supposed to pay. The barracks were for telegraphers and other employees in the economic occupation.

The customs barrier will formally cease at midnight Sunday, according to a proclamation which Premier Herriot ordered posted in the Ruhr and Rhineland today.

Armstrong's Linoleum for Every Floor in the House

A Sun Porch Needs a Gay, Bright Floor

THE sun porch shown in the picture was never quite successful before its present linoleum floor was laid. Its smart furniture, its effective cretonnes and hangings, were never at home with the old board floor. The paint on the floor was faded and worn; the surface was scarred; there were wide cracks. The wood floor marred the whole effect.

Then the floor you see was put down. It is Armstrong's Linoleum in a marble tile inlaid. See how smooth and unbroken its surface is, how colorful and attractive its design. A modern, handsome floor!

One of many new designs

This linoleum floor is only one of many beautiful patterns in the new linoleum. Armstrong's Linoleum may be had in inset tile inlays, marble inlays, carpet inlays. The new Jaspés—which are two-tone, rippling effects in blue, gray, green, and brown—are decidedly in vogue now for rooms where small or large fabric rugs are to be used.

Never before has there been so great and rich a variety of charming colorings and designs from which to choose pretty floors.

What Class of Room Renters Do You Want?

A home owner who rents a vacant room or two is interested in renting to a high class, reliable person only. The roomer will have the freedom of the home, and it is necessary that he or she be in no way objectionable to the family. The rooming house landlord is likewise deeply interested in the class of his tenants. He will have less annoyance caused by discontented roomers leaving if he is careful in selecting his tenants.

Desirable tenants can be easily and quickly reached through Tribune Want Ads. Advertisers testify that it is done every day in the year. Here is the statement of one who found the right kind of person through this Tribune Want Ad:

MELLON OFFERS FREE HAND TO TAX PROBERS

Solons Start Sift of the Income Returns.

BY A. STAFF CORRESPONDENT.

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—(Special)—Acting for the first time under the authority given committees of congress in the new revenue law to obtain access to the tax returns, the special Senate committee investigating the internal revenue bureau today called upon Secretary of the Treasury Mellon to furnish a long list of returns of individuals reporting incomes in excess of $100,000. Returns of individual taxpayers dating as far back as 1916 are desired.

The committee also called for the returns of all corporations which reported net incomes for 1923 amounting to $500,000 or more and which distributed as dividends less than 60 per cent of such net income.

Mellon Offers Free Hand.

The committee, of which Senator Couzens (Rep., Mich.) is chairman, conferred with Secretary Mellon, who gave assurance that all information desired would be furnished. Officials of the internal revenue bureau estimated that five or six weeks would be required to assemble the information desired. In the meantime no further public hearings will be held by the committee.

The information desired from tax returns is set forth in great detail in a formal resolution adopted by the committee.

Returns Under Inquiry.

The personal income tax returns from which Secretary Mellon is directed to tabulate detailed information include the following classes:

Persons net incomes returns of individuals who reported personal net incomes between $100,000 and $200,000 in 1916; returns for 1917, 1918, 1919, 1921, 1922, and 1923 of individuals who reported personal net incomes exceeding $100,000 in 1916; returns of individuals who did not report personal net incomes exceeding $100,000 in 1916, but who have reported personal net incomes exceeding $100,000 in any subsequent year, for the first year, subsequent to 1916, in which such individuals reported net personal incomes exceeding $100,000.

State Estate Tax Returns.

In the case of individuals who reported personal net incomes exceeding $100,000 for any year from 1916 to 1922, and who failed to file returns for any subsequent year, the treasury is called upon to ascertain whether the records show that such individuals have died and whether or not estate tax returns have been filed for the estates of such persons, and, if so, to furnish a copy of the estate tax returns.

TREBIZOND, On the Russian frontier, Sept. 18.—The Red army retrieved Tiflis, the capital of Georgia, yesterday, after desperate fighting. At least 600 leading citizens were executed immediately by a cheka detachment to teach the town a lesson. Hundreds of others were imprisoned.

Retire to Mountains.

The revolutionists forces apparently are falling back and are moving toward the mountains, where it will be impossible to dislodge them. Some revolutionist bands are hastening to Azerbaijan, where the revolution among the Mohammedan Tartars is still developing. It is confirmed that most of the 30,000 workers in the Baku oil fields have revolted because of the low government wages, dynamiting many wells.

The International Barmecide corporation, which is the only foreign company in the Baku field, withdrew in the nick of time. This American company just had abandoned its big concession, withdrawing to Russia. It is reported that a large part of its former concession was burned. Its twenty-five American oil men left Baku last week.

Peasants Flees Reds.

As the Georgian revolutionists are falling back they are accompanied by thousands of peasants, who prefer to take refuge in the mountains rather than live under the soviet régime.

In "singing Georgia," one of the most fertile spots in the world, the peasants are unable to live because the soviets take a large part of their grain as taxes, and then pay them a pittance in rubles. At American cents, per bushel for the remainder. As the state price of wheat is so low and there are no private traders, the peasants reduced the acreage to the barest minimum, and there is a great scarcity of flour, although weather conditions are entirely favorable this year.

PROVOKED BY REDS.

(Chicago Tribune Foreign News Service.)

LONDON, Sept. 18.—News reached London today that the Georgia revolt has been crushed by the soviets and never had any chance of success because it was deliberately provoked by the Russian government for the purpose of uncovering leaders and nipping the revolutionary movement in the bud.

WILBUR SEES NO REBUKE FOR WET TALK IN RECALL

Here Only Two Hours
in Dash to Capital.
(Picture on back page.)

"My recall from California to Washington is in no sense a rebuke," Curtis A. Wilbur, secretary of the navy, told newspaper men during a two hour wait yesterday between trains.

He arrived at 5 o'clock, on the Chicago and Northwestern, and departed at 6 o'clock on the Pennsylvania.

The object of Mr. Wilbur's speed trip, made by airplane and train, in answer to a call from the President, made shortly after the secretary had denounced the Volstead act before the California Bar association, has been a subject of discussion throughout the country.

Needed in Budget Work.

"No, there is no reason to believe the message a rebuke. My task in the west was practically completed, and I am needed at the capital to aid in the work on the new naval budget. All the money the department is given must be made to do all the work possible."

When told of the naval resolution, made by the American Legion convention at St. Paul yesterday, amounting to a protest against further scrapping of the navy, Secretary Wilbur was surprised.

Denies Jap Rumors.

"What you say is news to me," he said. "The policy of the department is to adhere to the 5-5-3 ratio agreement. That is only another way of saying that the department will not be influenced by what any organization may recommend."

"President Coolidge's message caused me to forego my trip to inspect the Teapot Dome naval oil reserves in Wyoming. But they were inspections of minor importance."

It was reported in some quarters that Mr. Wilbur's navy speech on the coast had aroused resentment of the Japanese government, and the Tokyo embassy at Washington had threatened to recall its chargé d'affaires.

"The practical effect of all this is that the exports of the United States of 35,000,000 bushels in the last six weeks show substantial increase over last year. There is every reason to believe that these exports will be maintained."

The revolutionists forces apparently are falling back and are moving toward the mountains, where it will be impossible to dislodge them. Some revolutionist bands are hastening to Azerbaijan, where the revolution among the Mohammedan Tartars is still developing.

It is confirmed that most of the 30,000 workers in the Baku oil fields have revolted because of the low government wages, dynamiting many wells.

The International Barmecide corporation, which is the only foreign company in the Baku field, withdrew in the nick of time.

Despite the fact that the railway station to Tiflis has been opened and the revolutionists driven back, Gen. Budenny, commander of all the cavalry forces in south Russia, has arrived in the Caucasus to take charge of an offensive.

The bolsheviks are still landing great quantities of airplanes, armored cars, and troops at Batumi. A dozen armored trains have arrived overland to operate there.

HIGHER PRICE OF WHEAT NATURAL, HOOVER INSISTS

Washington, D. C., Sept. 18.—[Special]—Natural causes have been responsible for wheat price advances, according to Secretary of Commerce Hoover, who denied today the assertion of La Follette orators that it was all due to a conspiracy hatched in Wall street to fool the farmers.

"The statements being broadcast that the very substantial rise in the price of wheat is due to artificial causes has no foundation in fact," said Secretary Hoover. "Two things have underlaid this advance. First, there has been a marked increase in the world's wheat crop from this year than that of last year. Second, the increased stability given to Europe by the recent settlements brought about through activities of the administration have increased the buying power and outlook for consumption."

"The practical effect of all this is that the price of wheat has gone up. The exports of wheat from the United States in the last six weeks show an increase over last year. There is every reason to believe that these exports will be maintained."

Denies Jap Rumors.

"What you say is news to me," he said. "The policy of the department is to adhere to the 5-5-3 ratio agreement. That is only another way of saying that the department will not be influenced by what any organization may recommend."

"President Coolidge's message caused me to forego my trip to inspect the Teapot Dome naval oil reserves in Wyoming. But they were inspections of minor importance."

It was reported in some quarters that Mr. Wilbur's navy speech on the coast had aroused resentment of the Japanese government, and the Tokyo embassy at Washington had threatened to recall its chargé d'affaires.

Needed in Budget Work.

"No, there is no reason to believe the message a rebuke. My task in the west was practically completed, and I am needed at the capital to aid in the work on the new naval budget. All the money the department is given must be made to do all the work possible."

When told of the naval resolution, made by the American Legion convention at St. Paul yesterday, amounting to a protest against further scrapping of the navy, Secretary Wilbur was surprised.

COUNT RIDES OUT ON HIS BED WHEN THE RENT FAILS

New York, Sept. 18.—(Special)—Living in bed with clothes on, Marc Ferdinand Charrie, who is described by his wife, Delta, as Count Mylan de Laland, was moved with his clock, typewriter, palms, pet canary and briarroot from his one room and bath apartment in 76th street, and deposited on the sidewalk by a deputy sheriff and three husky Negro helpers, early tonight.

The count and countess were ordered dispossessed by the landlord, Mrs. Anna F. Morton. Justice Young signed an order to vacate after a trial by jury.

Meet the Crisis in Bed.
De Laland was sadly watching the removal of his possessions, when his lawyer, Robert Berry, arrived. The count, who is said to be suffering from a chronic illness which was the cause of his rejection by the French army in the world war, complained of feeling ill, and when surprise was expressed that he was outdoors, he decided to go to bed. His didn't stop to change clothes.

Deputy Hutton called a taxicab, which was declined. He then called an ambulance, but the count refused to avail himself of the medical services of the ambulance surgeon. The deputy then had the bed taken out of the building and with it the count.

Counsel for the count hurried downtown and obtained a stay from Justice Aaron Levy. When he returned the deputy and his three helpers had gone.

Enlists Women in Cause.

It was impossible to find workmen at night to move the property back into the building, but the count found many sympathetic women in the crowd around his bedside and they volunteered to carry the bed back indoors. The weight of the bed and its occupant was too much for the women, however, so the count rolled out and sat on the doorstep while his sympathizers carried the bed back in.

According to the owner of the house, rent is due. It is maintained also that the count and countess are undesirable tenants because they tried to make of their home a business establishment.

SLEEP MALADY INVADES INDIANA; 3 VICTIMS DIE

Laporte, Ind., Sept. 18.—Three are dead here from what is believed to be acute sleeping sickness. The dead are: Mary Griffin, 40, Indianapolis; Carl Hahn, 21, and Rose Scholz, 20 year old Wanatah girl.

Miss Griffin was stricken with the disease while on a vacation at Bass Lake. Carl Hahn, who died last night, was 30 years old.

Rose Scholz, who had been unconscious since brought to the hospital here five days ago, died tonight.

The missing pins were in the handbag placed on the girl after the operation. She denies having swallowed them.

Red Riding Hood
By ELIZABETH JORDAN

SYNOPSIS.

Mrs. Moran Schuyler, one of New York's leading philanthropic and social lights, advertises for a young woman to work in her apartment mornings. The advertisement is answered by a girl evidently of birth and breeding. In spite of the fact that she admits to hide her identity, Mrs. Schuyler accepts her on trust and tags her with the name of Hope Emerson. Mrs. Schuyler's family consists of her mother, Mrs. Van Dorn, a young brother, Jim Van Dorn, and an older brother, Bertie, who is away but whose room is always kept ready for him. Hope encounters Jim Van Dorn in the hall.

INSTALLMENT V.
RISING SPIRITS.

It became clear that Van Dorn was numbered by the impact of Hope's simple statement that she was the new maid.

"The devil you are!" he muttered at last. "I beg your pardon!" As he made a forward movement, he retreated to let her pass him. Then his mental equipment resumed its normal action, and he fell into step beside her.

"Permit me to be your guide."

She shook her head.

"Please don't be much rather you wouldn't."

"But I have got to," he persisted. "If I don't, you'll lose the way and perhaps wander off days without food or water."

"Don't be absurd."

"I'm not. I'm being practical. To come down to brass tacks," he cheerfully added, "you're a stranger in a strange land. In two minutes more, unless I plot you, you'll be bursting in upon my mother at the sacred moment when she's adjusting her transformation. She dislikes to be intruded upon at such a crisis. She has told me so. Three minutes later you'll surprise Kawa surreptitiously packing a basket of provisions for some up-to-date picnic. I have given our family's maid more than twenty-four hours after such a revelation. Kawa sees the time. What's behind me?"

He stopped and wheeled to face her, then continued his tour. He stopped also. They had reached the farther end of the square main hall. Miss Emerson was tall, but this athletic youth towered several inches above her. The fact gave him an unfair advantage, which he promptly took, and smiled down into her eyes.

"Now, tell me, what did you mean by claiming to be the new maid? Was it a joke?"

All the new maid's former friendliness had departed. She faced him, cool and exceedingly remote. "I am the new maid. And I think we shall understand each other better if I tell you that the first condition of my engagement here is that I'm to have nothing whatever to pay to you."

"Do you think that I deserve that?"

He was lounging a trifle, his hands in his pockets, but under the sting of her words he removed them and straightened in quick resentment.

"Do you think I deserve that?"

"I don't know. I don't know anything about you. To be candid, I don't want to. I want to hold my position. I don't intend to lose it, through you or for any other reason, if I can keep it. You see, I'm very frank."

"You know it's a compliment if you choose, but please don't forget what I said. Now, will you tell me where my room is?"

He led her along a side corridor to a rather narrow door, and stood between it and her.

"That's the room." He indicated the door with a hospitable gesture.

"But I've a valedictory, too. May I deliver it?"

"If it's short."

"It will be. It's only this: I don't know what your masquerade means, but I do know that for some reason you're not a good girl. My sister will not know if she has a moment on already. It's her affair. If she's satisfied, I've nothing to say. Only—don't think you're fooling us."

Differently delivered the words would have been objectionable; but the tone was that of a brother, and now he smiled at her like a mischievous but friendly small boy. Much against her intention, and therefore with a particularly pleasing twist of that short upper lip, she returned the smile.

"There's only one thing more," he added. "As a rule, masquerade are up against something. If I can help you out at any time, let me know."

He was rather touched.

"In other words, I am interpreted, 'you're taking me on trust, like your sister's a good girl.'"

"I'm Maud taking you on trust, too? I'm mighty glad to know it. Good morning. I'll try not to trouble you."

He swung on his heel and departed; while she entered the clean little place. Its owner had not claimed too much for it. It was a box of a room, but it had two attractions—a big window overlooking the East river, and an aspect of perfect freshness. The newcomer gratefully realized that recently it had been "done over," as the phrase goes; that the room was in good, fresh paint. And in the room, order, and Hope's respect for Nancy, she also looked around.

The small day bed had an immaculate chintz cover. There was a table, a rocking chair, an electric reading light, and two rugs concealed part of the painted floor. Opening an inner door she found a tiny bathroom, with a square tub and a shower. Her heart rose. She could be clean and comfortable here and could save forty dollars a month by giving up her present room, which was neither comfortable nor conspicuously clean.

Forty dollars a month would be a definite help in meeting her obligations. The room had a built-in closet, and the final article of furniture was a tall high boy, in whose drawers she found not only the uniforms Mrs. Schuyler had brought for the day bed.

She changed hurriedly into one of the white uniforms. As her employer had hoped, it was not a bad fit. With slight alterations, which she could make that evening, it would do, and already it was taking on something of the special effect of smartness and finish this wearer gave to all her clothes. She had some scruples about putting on the uniform of another woman who was entitled to it by her diploma and record, and she met these by leaving off the cap. White dresses and white aprons were much alike. It was largely to the fact that the initiated knew where a nurse had received her training that Mrs. Schuyler had given the caps, she could buy some.

To her amazement, Hope found herself humming the air of a Balkan folk-song. It was not a gay lit, but that she should have an impulse to sing anything was little short of a miracle. She became silent on that bleak reflection, though she was subconsciously cheered by the fact that twice today her heart had risen to a degree which made songs and smiles seem almost natural.

The square mirror standing on the high-boy reflected only her head and shoulders, but this was enough to show that the new uniform was becoming. She hoped it would please Mrs. Schuyler. A companion hope that her employer would not be averse to paying pink roses and cupids on her was checked as frivolous. Nevertheless it too, heartened the new member of the household. She turned from the mirror, and with an almost affectionate farewell glance at her room went back to the rose boudoir.

There she found a large and rather sulky baby putting the final touches to a quick morning toilet. The episode of half an hour ago, already dim in the girl's memory, was still in the foreground of her employer's mind. Mrs. Schuyler had something to say, but she was preoccupied with the spark died in her blue eyes. One of the noted minstrel's qualities was the power of wholeheartedly admiring those more attractive than herself. Moreover, the telephone eased the strain of the moment by ringing compellingly. Its owner waved a majestic and now unjeweled hand toward the instruments.

"Answer it. It's been ringing steadily ever since you left."

Hope took up the receiver.

"Mrs. Schuyler's apartment. May I have the name, please?"

The listener reflected that the girl really had a lovely voice.

"Mrs. Ransom?" Hope glanced at her employer and caught a negative murmur. "I'm so sorry, but I can't get Mrs. Schuyler here just now. May I take your message? The male jonge tournament has been postponed to the ninth. I will let him speak to you."

Standing before a full length mirror Mrs. Schuyler added the sole touch of color to a dark blue one piece gown by putting on a Jade necklace.

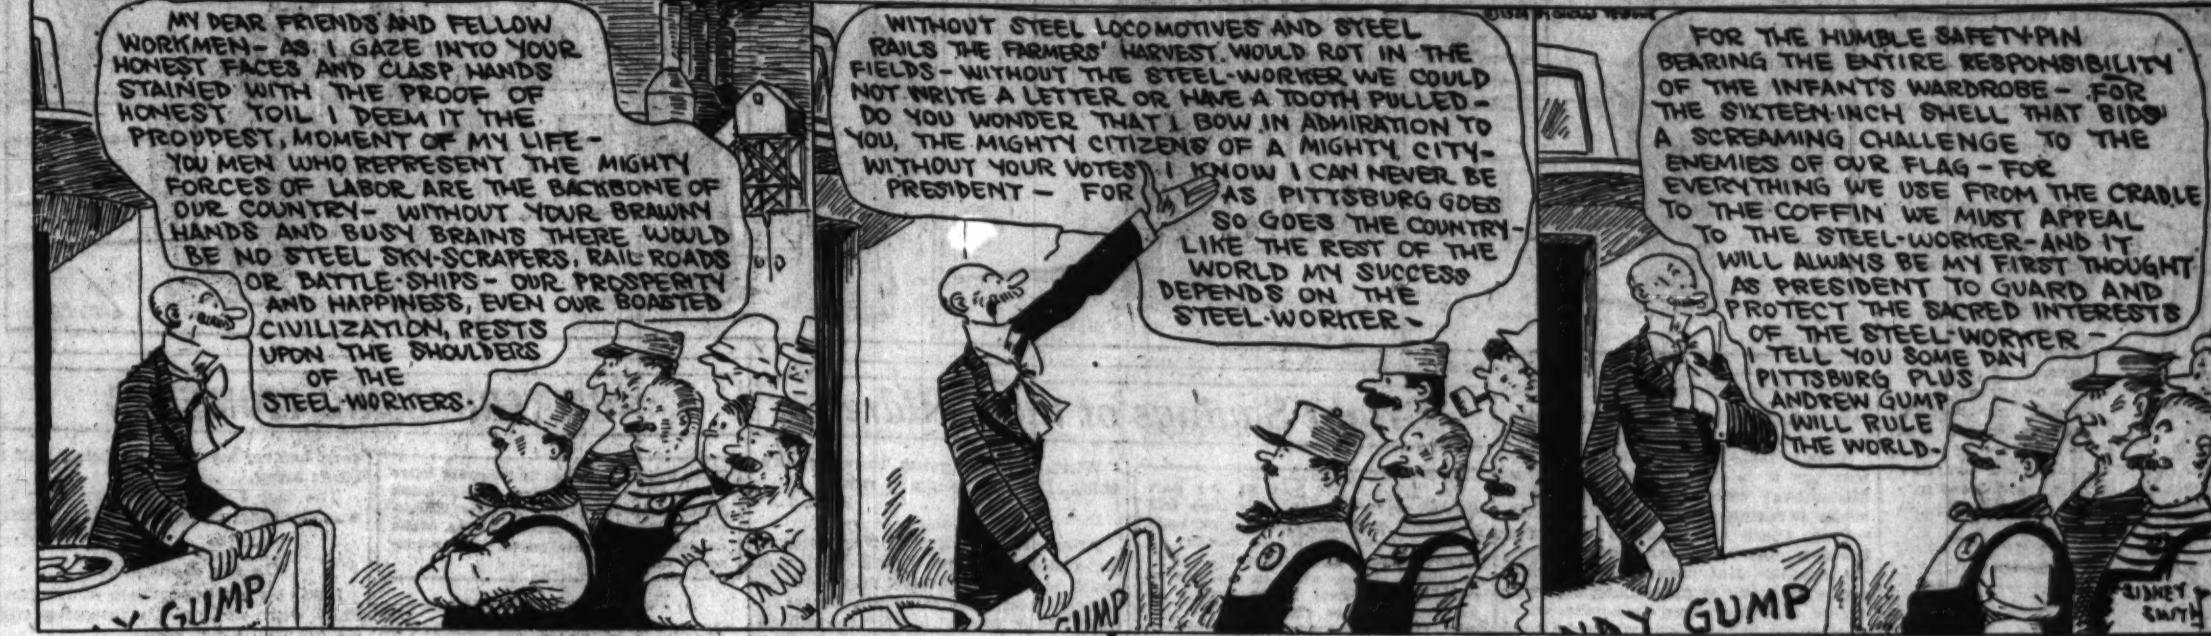

"Is this your engagement book?" The new employee took up a pink bound volume on the telephone stand. "I'll make notes in it of the most recent tournament and of other engagement memoranda that come in over the telephone. On this white pad, if you approve, I'll jot down messages that come home. When you're not here. You'll find a list of them every day, if I'm gone before you get home for luncheon."

"That will be very nice."

Henry J. Pattens Take Cottage for an Extended Visit

BY PANDORA.

Let Chicago society give a well bred smile cheer for two beloved old timers, for some years wanderers over the face of the globe, who are returning to us a visit.

They are Mr. and Mrs. Henry J. Pattens, and they have taken a cottage out at Onondaga for some six weeks. Mr. Pattens is here already, and has been for a fortnight. I understand he was among those present at the Great-the-Flyers dinner on Monday, and proved to be one of the many reason for the flyers' regret upon having to leave Chicago so soon.

Mr. Pattens is announced in Lake Forest now, and, being an enthusiastic amateur, is taking delight in the long ambles he and his steed are managing to squeeze into each day. The steed, by the by, is one of those rescued and cared for when earlier in the season, a disastrous fire burned the Onondaga stables to the ground.

And Mrs. Pattens, at present at Tama Farms, N. Y., is coming west to join her husband the first of next month. She is a charming person, but unfortunately, as she isn't blessed with the iron constitution necessary for playing one's part in the whirl of a city, she claims on her arrival frequent that we should like, or that then we are permitted of her husband. She occasionally stops off as a coast to coast journey, but not for long at a time, so it is a real treat to know that she will spend October in these parts.

Day's News in Society

Chicago society was well represented at the opening concert yesterday afternoon at Pittsfield, Mass., of the Berkshire Festival of Chamber Music, founded and supported by Mrs. Frederick S. Coolidge and one of the outstanding musical and social events of the season. The most interesting information comes that Mrs. George Benedict Carpenter of the Plaza hotel, Mrs. Donald F. McPherson, Mr. and Mrs. James Ransom Walker, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick T. West, Mrs. Clyde Mitchell Carr, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Metz, Mr. and Mrs. Jacques Gordon, and Mr. and Mrs. W. Rockwood Gibbs were among those present. Mr. and Mrs. John Allen Carpenter and their daughter, Miss "Ginny" Carpenter, were in the audience.

Mr. and Mrs. Carpenter were in the audience.

Mr. George Higginson has issued cards for a luncheon at Rock Ledge in Boston, for tomorrow for the Lenox club's invention tennis tournament players. Mr. and Mrs. Charles W. Comes of the Ambassador, who have been spending the summer at Kennebunkport, Me., have arrived at Pittsfield for a six weeks' stay, and Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Carpenter of 1545 Astor street are among the arrivals in Stockbridge.

Mr. Edward Ryerson of 33 Park street is spending his week at the Lenox club. Mrs. Warren M. Salisbury has several guests from Rumford, Me., at a house party this week.

From the Massachusetts north shore it is learned that Mr. and Mrs. Bernard F. Rogers are visiting Mrs. Rogers' parents, the Francis Lee Higgins, at Princeton. The hunting season is now on at Myopia, and the field of riders following the hounds in Essex county is now a common sight. Mr. and Mrs. Arthur G. Leonard, who have been at the Eastern Point at Gloucester, are to return next week.

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Hinde of 3524 Astor street of the engagement of their daughter, Elizabeth, to Charles S. De Long, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederic T. De Long of 1347 Astor street.

The Onondaga hunt committee will hold its first meeting tomorrow afternoon, and the regular meetings for the remainder of the month are to take place at the Hunt Club. Tuesday afternoons at 2:30 o'clock. The hunt will leave the kennels at 2:30 o'clock tomorrow. The hunt committee is composed of Austin H. Niblack, chairman; Mrs. Andrews King, Mrs. Austin H. Niblack, and William E. Clow Jr., and Joseph T. Bowen Jr. in honorary whipper-in. All of these are among society's best riders and are ardent enthusiasts in all equine matters.

Mrs. Chamroy R. Blair of 155 Briar place has returned from a European trip of several months. Mrs. Blair is the step-granddaughter of Mrs. William E. Mitchell, who died on Wednesday at Harbor Point, Mich.

Mr. and Mrs. Vincent M. Quinn of 114 Arthur street, in the announcement of the birth of a daughter, Carol Crossen, on Sept. 10, at the John B. Murphy hospital. Mrs. Quinn was Miss Jeanette Crossen of Evanston, and Miss Marquette Crossen of Glencoe are among this year's students at Mount Holyoke college, Mount Holyoke, Mass.

Mr. and Mrs. John F. Jelke Jr. of Lake Forest, have returned from a trip of several weeks in the east.

Miss Alice Menz of 1832 Lincoln avenue has returned from Spring Lake, Mich., where she has been spending the last two months.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur J. Neale of 114 Arthur street, in the announcement of the birth of a daughter, Carol Crossen, on Sept. 10, at the John B. Murphy hospital. Mrs. Quinn was Miss Jeanette Crossen of Evanston, and Miss Marquette Crossen of Glencoe are among this year's students at Mount Holyoke college, Mount Holyoke, Mass.

Infant Welfare Meeting.

Directors of the Infant Welfare committee of Chicago will hold their first full meeting today at 12:30 o'clock at the Chicago Athletic association, 12 South Michigan avenue. The meeting will be presided over by the president, Ludus Teter.

Temple Center to Hold Dance.

Temple Center, Beth Israel of Alhambra, will hold its first dance of the season on Sunday. Other dances will be held on the third Sunday of every month.

GRAINS RALLY AT CLOSE AND FINISH AT HIGH OF DAY

BY CHARLES MICHAELS.

There was no material present in the grain market, and little in corn either. Local sentiment was generally bearish, but offerings were quickly absorbed by commission houses and shorts, and a strong rally followed, with the close at net gains of 1% to 2% on wheat, 1% to 2% on corn, 1% to 2% on oats, and 1% to 2% on rye.

With a light speculative trade, the market quickly passed from an overbearish to a more active position, and there was but relatively little buying of wheat by the seaboard, foreigners, and several strong commission houses to start the market upward. At the outside prices showed 14¢ to 15¢ over the early low, and the close was at the top, with September $1.23, December $1.23 1/2, and May at $1.24 1/2.

Canadian Movement Light.

Strength in the northwest had some effect on values toward the last. Winnipeg gained 14¢ to 15¢ and noted limited hedging pressure. Movement in the Canadian northwest is still limited, with Winnipeg receiving 224 cars, against 1,554 cars last year, while only 648 cars were loaded in the country, the leading railroads on Wednesday. Canadian wheat bought in Winnipeg and sold here early.

There was a pause in the export demand, with sales of 600,000 bu reported at the seaboard. Liverpool closed 3¢ lower, failing fully to reflect the decline in North America the previous day.

Liquidation in Corn.

Longs liquidated their corn early, and long shorts were forced to do the same.

Prices dropped 1¢ to 1 1/2¢ at one time from the close of the previous day, with numerous stop loss orders uncovered, but the selling was less than expected and later the buying of May by a house with seaboard connections started the market upward, and there was a scramble on the part of local dealers to cover. September was at $1.14 1/2, December $1.20 1/2, and May at $1.21 1/2.

Local reports from the interior were mixed, with numerous claims that the crop was steadily maturing, despite the unfavorable weather. A cool wave is coming in from the west, and the forecast suggested frost in Montana and Wyoming. Basis on cash corn was off around 1¢, as buyers refused to follow the advance in futures. Receipts were 200 cars.

Oats Resist Pressure.

Cots market continues to show stubborn resistance to pressure and, while lower early with corn, rallied toward the

HAY BUYING SLOWER

Demanded for Timothy hay was slower with receipts 48 cars. Chicago prairie sold well with arrivals 5 cars eastward, and of packing 1 car, which sold well. Receipts of winter wheat hay were 5 cars and 5 cars winter wheat.

TRADE IN STOCKS INCREASES AND PRICES ADVANCE

YESTERDAY'S AVERAGES

The New York Times.

New York, Sept. 18.—(Special)—No movement of importance took place in any market today. Transactions on the stock exchange increased to more than double Tuesday's total, but most of the increase and most of the day's advance of prices came in the "personally conducted" shares of the industrial group.

Other markets mostly devoted to retracing their movement of the day before. Wheat and corn advanced again. Sterling lost all of its previous day's advance and then weakened moderately. Cotton did not change.

There were numerous advances today of 200 points in stocks of the industrial group, but the important investment shares did not move with them. The market again opened strong, but in the afternoon there was an irregular movement of prices. At the close the net changes were again about evenly divided, and the averages showed a gain in the industrial group, a slight decline in the railroad group.

The professional origin of today's activity is rather obvious. Whether the general public's hesitancy in attacking the attitude is unmistakable, the people are apparently waiting for concrete evidence of the actual political drift of the doubtful states.

FINANCIAL NOTES

During the initial opening in yesterday's stock market nearly three dozen stocks established new high records for the year including Standard, Air Reduction, Goodyear Tire, Union Carbide, Rustin preferred, Missouri and Southern, and preferred, Missouri, Colorado and Southern, St. Louis Southern preferred, Southern, and Wabash River Pump issues. American Tobacco and B. Postum Cereal, United Drug, and Allis Chalmers preferred.

U. S. Steel common closed three-digits lower at 1058 after having sold a point above that figure. Baldwin dropped a point to 1224, while American Can closed fractionally higher at 130 after having touched 129.

Speculation for oil shows a thin market made some of the largest gains. Worthington Pump advanced 6 points to 354. American Steel recorded a similar gain. U. S. Industrial Light and Fixture, International Harvester, Kliney & Co., Standard Steel Products preferred, Pure Oil 8 per cent preferred, and United Fruit moved up 3 to 5 points.

General Baking broke 8 points to 240 on two sales. General Electric dropped from 265 to 261, or 3 on the day, while U. S. Industrial Alcohol, American and Foreign Power companies (25 per cent paid), Delaware and Hudson, Jersey Central, Jones Brothers, the Gulf and Gulf, Mokita and Northern preferred least 14 or more points.

Active buying of the western issues was prompted on reports of unusually heavy rail loadings. Rock Island continued closing 35 to a new high on the current movement.

In the cur market rates and issues were about evenly divided. Oil held relatively firm. Purity Oil and Gas declined 14 but most of the other active issues showed only fractional changes. Quistite Safety Razor, stock, was marked up four points, while U. S. Steel, 1 to 26 cents were registered by the market. Ward Baking, Safety Razor, General Motors, and United States Safety Razor, new stock. Ward Baking had nearly 10 points. A break of 10 points to 87 in J. B. Consolidated Mining was the feature of the mining group.

RAILROAD NOTES

Reports of 104 class "A" railroads of the United States for July as filed with the interstate commerce commission show operating revenues of $461,877,905, compared with $462,307,145 for the corresponding period last year, and a net operating income of $74,987,075, compared with $84,335,306.

O. P. Van Sweringen, was appointed chairman of the proxy committee for the new "Nickel Plate" system at its first conference yesterday, which was attended by representatives of the various roads involved in the merger. Organization details only were discussed. It was stated.

Freight car in need of repair Sept. 1 totaled 210,100 or 0.2 per cent of the number on line, an increase of 1,618 over the number on Aug. 15.

West Jersey and Seaboard was tentatively valued by the interstate commerce commission at $56,621,763 as of June 30, 1916. The Washington and Eastern was valued at $1,360,000 as of June 30, 1916.

The number of stockholders of the Pennsylvania on Sept. 1 increased by 5,007 to 145,903, compared with August, 1923.

One Way to Pay

You may know of a thousand ways to borrow money.

The striking thing about Morris Plan loans is the way they are paid back.

You don't have any big payments to make at any one time.

You pay the Morris Plan in weekly, monthly or semi-monthly (as you prefer) installments.
